Blush

If the heat hurts your makeup, blush will be one of the first things to go.

1. Again, steer clear of creamy formulas, which tend to streak and invite shine. Instead, opt for a soft, powdery formula that will look fresh and absorb oil.
2. For more staying power, apply cheek stain, then dust a matching powder blush on top of it.

Foundation

Glowing skin is beautiful. If your face is greasy, however... well, that's another story. Six steps for shine-free makeup that stays put:

1. If your skin is oily, hydrate it with an oil-free moisturizer. If it's extra oily, skip the moisturizer and just dab a little eye lotion under your eyes. And if your skin is dry, moisturize as usual.
2. To keep the greasies at bay, prepare your skin for foundation by applying an anti-shine product.
3. If you have very good skin, skip the foundation and just use a spot concealer, which will stay on longer. Use it under eyes, around corners of your nose, and wherever you have blemishes.
4. If you do use foundation, apply an oil-free formula with a foundation brush.
5. After you've applied your liquid foundation, powder your face with a small brush.

Choose an Indoor-Outdoor location. If you haven't already booked your site — whether all-outdoors or all-indoors — look for a beautiful reception site that offers both outdoor and indoor party areas, such as one with a fabulous ballroom and a lovely outdoor terrace overlooking manicured gardens, a golf course, or the ocean. Guests can decide if they want to be in the outdoor elements, or comfortable inside in the air conditioned building. Especially if you have older or pregnant guests, it's essential to provide a cooler environment option for all.

Rent A/C units. If your wedding will be in a tent, or out in the open air, be sure to rent high-quality, portable fans that you test out in the rental store to judge their strength and relative silence. Great party fans now run at a lower volume level so that everyone can hear the toasts and the music. Invest well in plenty of these fans for everyone's comfort, and place them around the seating area, the bar, anywhere guests will gather.

Lips

You'll be kissing your new husband, kissing your guests, sipping champagne... how in the world are you supposed to keep your lipstick on all day? Heed this advice for a picture perfect pucker:

1. Start off by moisturizing your lips with balm so your pencil will glide along easily. Then take your lip pencil and color in your entire mouth -- this will prevent your lipstick from bleeding and supply more holding power.
2. Insider Secret: If you're the type of person who can never keep her lipstick on, use a medium-toned concealer as a base before your lip pencil.
3. Once your pencils in place, apply your lipstick, then blot with a tissue. While the tissue is still pressed to your lips, brush some loose powder on top, then remove the tissue and make up your lips again to seal the deal.
4. The final step is adding a touch of gloss and applying lipstick sealer. Just one coat on your upper and lower lips will hold your color in place all day, or at least most of it.
