High school funding initiative qualifies for ballot

By PARIS ACHEN
Capital Bureau

SALEM — An initiative to dedicate more state funding to high school dropout prevention and career and technical education has qualified for the November ballot, according to the Secretary of State's Office.

The campaign for Initiative Petition 65, Oregonians for High School Success Initiative, gathered 101,302 valid signatures, 13,118 more than the 88,184-signature threshold.

The ballot measure allocates one-sixth of new state revenue to high school dropout prevention, college readiness and career technical education programs.

"Every Oregon high school should provide students with real world skills and hands-on professional training that connects to local good paying jobs, and students should have better access to college level classes," said Peter Zuckerman, a spokesperson for the IP 65 campaign. "This measure will do these things."

The measure would infuse high schools with about $147 million a year. That amount would be significantly greater if voters also approve a controversial corporate sale tax measure in November, which levies a 2.5 percent tax on the Oregon sales exceeding $25 million of certain corporations.

The deadline to turn in signatures was July 8, but the Secretary of State's Office has until the first week of August to verify all of the signatures.

Former Gov. Ted Kulongoski, LaToya Fick, executive director of Stand for Children, and Carmen Rubio, executive director of the Latino Network, spearheaded the campaign for IP 65 in hopes of boosting the state's lackluster graduation rate.

Voter privacy, emergency clause fail to make ballot

By PARIS ACHEN
Capital Bureau

SALEM — Two initiative petitions — one requiring written consent to release voter information and another to restrict the use of emergency clauses in legislation — have failed to qualify for the November general election ballot.

The campaign for Initiative Petition 49, No More Fake Emergencies Act, failed to submit enough signatures to reach the 117,578 threshold for a constitutional change to the law. The act would have required a two-thirds majority vote in the Legislature to declare an emergency when it passes a bill.

Lawmakers have increasingly used emergency clauses in bills in order to achieve a quicker effective date. Adding the clause removes voters' constitutional right to contest the legislation via a referendum on the ballot.

The campaign needed 28,171 additional valid signatures to secure a position on the ballot, but turned in only 26,000, according to the Secretary of State's Office.

Chief petitioners Eric Winters of Wilsonville and Jason Williams of Beaverton proposed the measure.

Initiative Petition 50, the Voter Privacy Act, would have prohibited release of specific voter information without voters' express consent. Public officials who violated the law would have faced a Class A misdemeanor, according to the initiative proposed by Richard Taylor Whitehead of Aloha.

Next week, the Secretary of State's Office plans to verify signatures for IP 67, which allows lottery funds to be used for Outdoor School programs. IP 68, which would prohibit the sale of products made from 12 endangered species, also is on schedule for signature verification next week, said Molly Woon, a spokeswoman for the secretary of state.

Corrections

A headline in Friday's East Oregonian provided incorrect information about the Dillon Dam removal project. The dam is expected to be removed by next summer.

The city of Hermiston is proposing a one-year $100,000 rent payment for the Umatilla County Fire District 1, with decreasing payments in subsequent years. Incorrect information appeared on Page 1A of Friday's edition.
