Oregon high court overturns
Springfield murder conviction

PORTLAND (AP) — The Oregon Supreme Court on Thursday overturned the murder conviction of a Lane County man, ruling statements he made after requesting a lawyer should not have been admissible at his 2012 trial.

Robert Darnell Boyd, 33, was sentenced to life in prison after a jury convicted of him fatally beating his 18-year-old girlfriend on a Springfield sidewalk in 2010. Witnesses saw Boyd running from the scene and police found him with the woman’s blood on his hands, shoes and pants.

At the Springfield police station, Boyd told a sergeant and a detective he did not remember what happened. He expressed disbelief the woman was dead, asked why he was under arrest and requested a lawyer.

Seven hours later, the jailed Boyd initiated discussion with police, asking a sergeant: “Is anybody going to tell me why I’m here? I need to call my baby girl because she’s going to wonder where I’m at.”

The sergeant asked Boyd if “baby girl” referred to the girlfriend, Allyson Archibald. He also asked if Boyd recalled the detective telling him why he had been arrested.

“I just told him that I was present when Detective Myers told him that she was dead and he was under arrest for killing her,” the sergeant recalled at a court hearing. “He got real agitated and started breathing heavy and clenching his fists and told me, ‘no, no, she ain’t dead, you’re lying’ and then he tells me ‘I want to talk to the detective that you said I talked to.’”

Boyd then waived his Miranda rights and spoke the detective, admitting there had been an altercation. Boyd said he blacked out after hitting her once. When Myers said the woman’s injuries were inconsistent with a single punch, Boyd requested an attorney and the interview ended.

Though Boyd questioned the sergeant, the high court ruled the sergeant responded with questions likely to elicit incriminating responses.

Because Boyd’s request to speak with the detective “was hardly unprompted,” the opinion states, everything he said after becoming agitated and waiving his Miranda rights should have been inadmissible at trial.

The state unsuccessfully argued the defendant had asked a confusing question and the sergeant sought clarity.

Chief Lane County Deputy District Attorney Erik Hasselman said he hopes the state attorney general will appeal the case to the U.S. Supreme Court. He said Boyd will be retried, if necessary.

THURSDAY

10:03 a.m. - A Pendleton man with a history of mental illness withdrew $2,000 from his bank and held up a piece of paper that stated, “I am terrified.” The clerk asked the man if he was OK, and he said he did not need help. Bank staff alerted Pendleton police, which sent an officer to talk to the man. He told an officer he felt safe and no one was threatening him.

10:29 a.m. - That was one expensive car wash. A Heppner woman told Pendleton police she paid $10 to go through an automatic car wash at Time To Wash, 820 Southgate, Pendleton, then looked in her bank account and saw the actual charge was $63.

12:08 p.m. - A woman on the 900 block of North Elizabeth Avenue, Milton-Freewater, reported someone broke into her garage and stole items. Milton-Freewater police that morning took theft reports from the 300 block of Raspberry Loop and the 200 block of Northeast Fifth Avenue.

12:15 p.m. - A caller asked to speak to Umatilla police about a dog that may have been a “bait dog” for dog fights. The caller said she spoke with a Umatilla officer on Sept. 7 about this, then saw the dog Thursday and it appeared police did nothing.

12:45 p.m. - Milton-Freewater police received a report of vandalism that occurred during the weekend at Blue Mountain Community College, 311 N. Columbia St.

3:18 p.m. - Pendleton police received a stalking complaint from a man who said a caller claimed to know where he lives, who goes to his home and where his children live.

4:22 p.m. - A man in a flannel shirt and jeans at Good Shepherd Medical Center, Hermiston, yelled at and harassed a woman, who called 9-1-1 when he left. She said this stemmed from her a child custody case the man lost.

5:21 p.m. - A woman asked Pendleton police to come to her home on Southeast Jay Avenue because she told a guest who was staying with her for about three weeks to leave due to his violent outbursts, and when he stepped outside she locked him out, and he pounded on the door before leaving in his car.

6:18 p.m. - Two Pendleton juveniles harassing one another led to a fight. Police responded to Pendleton Square Apartments, 300 S.W. 28th Drive, after a mother reported the 15-year-old neighbor ran into her apartment, grabbed her 12-year-old son, and the two fought. The teen took off, and the mother said this started when the juveniles harassed each other through a closed window.

6:39 p.m. - A resident on East Wilshire Avenue, Hermiston, told police someone threw a mirror over their fence and tore the pool and tossed bricks into the pool through the pool cover.

7:31 p.m. - A caller told Umatilla police she was walking her client’s dog on Klickitat Street when a blue brindle pit bull attacked the dog she was walking. Neither dog was injured, she said, but she would sign a complaint against the pit bull’s owners.

PUBLIC SAFETY LOG

7:59 p.m. - Hermiston police received a report of possible domestic violence at a home on Northeast Second Street.

9:15 p.m. - An lone caller on B Street reported the neighbor may have tried to shoot his dog in the front yard.

11:20 p.m. - A Pendleton woman on Southwest Second Street reported the theft of her trash container, and the suspects could be neighbors.
