The Umatilla Indian agency school is without a peer in the west, according to Otis B. Goodall, supervisor of reservations in the three northwest states who is now making his second inspection of the year on the local reservation. Supervisor Goodall states that he has visited the Indian schools on all of the reservations from Texas north and west and has seen none to compare with that at the Umatilla agency. “The buildings are kept cleaner, the kitchens more sanitary and there are better safeguards against fire, disease and other dangers, and best of all, the children look much more healthy than on other reservations.” He paid a high compliment to Major E.L. Swartzlander, agent, and to those in charge of the schools. The agency school is now crowded almost to capacity as the agent makes it practically compulsory for all Indian children to attend school.

Stanfield’s Tigers, down 19-7 going into the final quarter, came roaring back to score 13 points in the fourth period and nip the Blue Devils 20-19. The Monkus brothers, Rod and Larry, tied things up for the Tigers late in the final stanza on a 60-yard pass-run play. Dennis Marcum then stepped back to try a boot for the PAT. An onrushing Blue Devil got a hand on the placement attempt but still Marcum’s kick split the upright and Stanfield had the victory.

Jed Schwendiman of Hermiston, a senior at Whitman College, is one of three students who received Sally Ann Abshire Research Scholar Awards for the fall semester. The Abshire Awards give students an opportunity to involve themselves in professional research, provide monetary compensation and pay for research materials. Schwendiman, a psychology major, is working with Whitman professor of psychology Jay Eacker on a series of experiments involving laboratory rats and illumination chambers. The experiments are designed to test the extent to which an animal’s ability to control its environment affects its behavior.

High-steak game:
78-point win means
big dinner discount

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A Michigan steakhouse got more sizzle than it bargained for out of a college football promotion.

Ruth’s Chris Steak House in Ann Arbor announced on its Facebook page Friday that for the remainder of the season, customers would receive a percentage off their total food bill equal to the final winning point differential in the latest University of Michigan football game.

Then came Michigan’s 78-0 drubbing of Rutgers on Saturday, its largest margin of victory since an 85-0 win in 1939 over the University of Chicago. But the Facebook posting capped the discount at 50 percent and said the offer does not include alcohol.

The restaurant posted on its website Sunday that it was “fully committed with reservations” through Thursday, when the offer expires.

TEEN STRUGGLES TO ADAPT TO DAD’S STRICT PARENTING

DEAR ABBY

Dear Abby: I’m a 13-year-old girl in the eighth grade. I moved in with my father and his girlfriend five months ago. (My mom is estranged.)

They are very strict and controlling. I’m not allowed to go anywhere, have friends over or be in my room with my phone for any amount of time, and I have to do all the chores in the summertime. They also go through my phone even though they have no reason to.

They post embarrassing pictures of me under my Facebook account, take my phone away constantly (so I can’t talk to my friends who live far away), force me to play softball (that’s a big one), which I hate, etc. My privacy is nonexistent, especially considering how I used to live before. I feel like I have no independence.

I know I can be disrespectful at times, but I don’t get into trouble and I don’t understand why they act like they do. I’m really stressed out. In the past I have gotten so upset I cut myself on the wrist, and I have drunk liquid pain medicine. (I know it was stupid.) But sometimes I seriously think about killing myself. So, what should I do, Abby? — It’s Unfair In New Hampshire

JEANNE PHILLIPS
Advice

Dear Unfair: What you should do — and right away — is talk to a counselor at school and tell that person everything you have told me.

I don’t know your father and his girlfriend, what conditions you were living under previously, or why you are being treated the way you are. But if you are so depressed that you are harming yourself or contemplating suicide, you need more help than I can give you here. I repeat, PLEASE DON’T WAIT.

Dear Abby: My girlfriend, whom I have been dating for more than a year, has isolated herself from me and all her friends because her makeup came off while she was in a hot tub and everyone saw her without it. She’s insecure about her appearance and has worn heavy makeup every day since she was 12. When she went into the hot tub, the hair melted it off, and when she saw it was gone, she started crying and left the party early.

She hasn’t talked to me or any of her friends since. Her brother said she was embarrassed about being seen without makeup and doesn’t want to talk to anyone. It has been two weeks since I last spoke to her, and she hasn’t even talked to her sister in more than a week. I don’t know what I should do. — Hot Tub Meltdown

Dear Hot Tub Meltdown: Assuming that your girlfriend isn’t an actress, model or other celebrity who must be camera-ready at every moment, she seems overly preoccupied with her appearance. Unless she has an unsightly skin condition she’s self-conscious about, her extreme overreaction isn’t normal. If she is a minor, her parents should be told what’s going on so they can get her some psychological help, because she appears to need it. If she’s an adult, then the person who should urge her to do so is you.
