Community warms up during Pancakes with Santa

By TAMMY MALGESINI

Despite frigid temperatures throughout the region, the Hermiston Conference Center sizzled with holiday cheer during Saturday's Pancakes with Santa.

Presented by Hermiston Parks & Recreation, the event, which pre-sold 150 tickets, is in its second year. Doug Barak, past president of the Hermiston Noon Kiwanis Club, said the service group is always looking for opportunities to serve kids in the community. More than a dozen Kiwanians took a break from selling Christmas trees outside the conference center to help with the family event.

"It's a fun event and creates some great memories," Barak said.

Karen and Russell Seaton agreed. The couple, who moved to Hermiston from Eugene this past summer, said it provided an opportunity to spend time with others in the community.

McKenna Seaton shows off an ornament she made while her friends Athena Huffman-Martin and Harmony Blake work on craft projects Saturday during Pancakes with Santa at the Hermiston Conference Center.

Pancakes with Santa, Karen said, was designed to focus on kids and families. Reserved tables of eight were arranged around the room. Key Club members — a student-run service program sponsored by the Zepeda and Vanessa Ambriz, vice president, said it was fun seeing people happy and having a good time. The event, Zepeda said, was all about spreading Christmas joy.

Seaton liked the arrangement, which encouraged family togetherness.

"I like having our own tables," Karen said. "Then, you can also get up and mingle with other people."

The Seatons' 6-year-old daughter, McKenna, was happy spending time with some of her West Park Elementary School classmates.

"Because school has been out, they've been needing their friend fix," Karen said.

McKenna, along with Athena Huffman-Martin and Harmony Blake, both 6, were busy creating crafts. The trio showed off their gingerbread men and reindeer ornaments. Besides making ornaments and coloring holiday-themed pictures, the girls agreed they missed visiting with each other since snowy weather forced school closures the past few days.

"My favorite part is being with my friends," Harmony said.

Santa Claus posed for photos and listened as eager youngsters shared their Christmas wish lists. In addition, some kids had some important business to attend to — including the pressing question of the day.

"He wanted to know if he was on the naughty list," Tiffany Rettkowski said about her younger son, Justin.

The 5-year-old is hoping the jolly ol' elf will deliver a drone during his Christmas Eve flight. His 10-year-old brother, Ryan, who has his heart set on a LEGO set, enthusiastically summed up the Pancakes with Santa event.

"We had fun, more fun and even more fun," he said while grinning from ear to ear.
