We help others by bringing out the best in you.
Ben Nelson - SYKES employee since 2012
"I came to SYKES for a job and a paycheck, but it turned into a school, and then a family, as I've worked here and advanced."

Loving a job that empowers your life
Ben Nelson lives by the saying that, "learning is a life-skill that brings on bigger and better opportunities". Thinking back to when he started as an agent in Milton-Freewater, Ben says, "A big perk of working for SYKES is learning a ton about different industries by helping to solve customer service problems."
"When I was training as an agent on a major financial service account, I learned enough for it to have a huge advantage in my personal life. I learned about finance and banking and it helped me to make better decisions about handling my money."
Learning was the key for Ben's success at SYKES. He did not come from a financial background when starting at SYKES, but he learned quickly and was soon promoted to a SME (Subject Matter Expert). Ben's ability to soak up information led him into training; first helping in the training classroom at Milton-Freewater and then as a full-time trainer for the work-at-home program.
Some final advice Ben has for new agents looking for growth opportunities at SYKES: "One of the best ways to advance is to volunteer for everything. Take a chance and throw your hat in the ring for other opportunities. Even if you don't get it, going through the interview process will teach you a new skill set. Don't hesitate to put yourself forward."
