BRIEFLY

Man gets one year in jail for ninth drunken driving offense

PORTLAND (AP) — A 56-year-old man who racked up his ninth conviction for drunken driving has been sentenced to one year in jail.

The Oregonian/OregonLive reports Cary Dean Devore was sentenced Thursday in Multnomah County Circuit Court.

Judge Judith Matarazzo said the jail sentence will allow Devore to enter a drunken driving intensive supervision program which requires him to stay sober and stick with treatment to avoid going to prison.

Deputy District Attorney Mike Bothof had argued for prison time, citing community safety.

Devore's history of driving-under-the-influence convictions stretches back to 1980, when he was 19.

His latest arrest was in October when his blood alcohol content was .28 percent, 2 1/2 times the legal limit of .08 percent for driving.

Priest gets three months in jail for having sex with teen prostitute

EUGENE (AP) — A Eugene priest found guilty of prostitution for paying a 17-year-old girl to have sex with him has been sentenced to three months in jail.

The Register-Guard reports Daniel MacKay was given a 90-day jail sentence Thursday. The judge said he would be eligible to serve 60 of those days in an alternative program, such as community service.

MacKay is accused of paying the teen for sex acts on several occasions last summer after she posted online prostitution advertisements.

He was arrested in October and then suspended from his duties at St. John the Wonderworker Orthodox Church. An update on his status with the church is unknown.

The 42-year-old priest has denied the allegations and said during trial that he gave the girl money because she needed help.
