Sheriff's office nets five DUII arrests over Memorial Day weekend

East Oregonian

The Umatilla County Sheriff's Office reported deputies worked extra patrols during the Memorial Day Weekend and made five arrests for driving under the influence of intoxicants.

Deputies also cited and warned 29 more drivers for traffic violations. Sheriff's Sgt. Joshua Roberts in a written statement called the effort "a great success."

The following breakdown of DUII arrests is from the sheriff's office:

•Roberts on Friday at about 8:15 p.m. stopped Alfredo Garcia-Preciado, 25, of Hermiston, for speeding on Powerline Road outside Hermiston. Garcia-Preciado's blood-alcohol level was .12 percent, over the .08 percent legal limit in Oregon.

•Deputy Nathan Rankin a little after midnight Saturday stopped Gail Susan Yi, 35, of Hermiston, for failing to drive within her lane and running a stop sign. Her blood-alcohol level was .13 percent.

•Roberts at about 9:15 p.m. Saturday drove an unmarked car northbound on Highway 395 out of Hermiston when a car passed going about 90 mph. That led to a stop and the arrest of Jacob Joe Martinez, 32, of Hermiston, whose blood-alcohol level was .14 percent.

•About two hours later, deputy Trevor Limburg responded to the 1500 block of North Ott Road outside of Hermiston to help city police find a driver that was in a hit-and-run crash at the edge of the city limits. Officers found the suspect, Jesse Luis Lopez, 25, of Hermiston, passed out behind the steering wheel of his vehicle. Limburg arrested him for DUII and misdemeanor hit and run. His blood-alcohol level was .14 percent.

•Limburg at about 11:15 p.m. Sunday was patrolling Highway 395 near Umatilla and saw a vehicle fail to drive within its lane. Limburg made the stop and arrested Ricardo Santo-Ramirez, 36, of Bremerton, Washington. His blood-alcohol level was .14 percent.

Roberts stated a grant from the Oregon State Sheriff's Association provided the funds for the extra patrols, which were part of a nationwide effort to get impaired drivers off the streets.

College Place offender tries to flee police, ends up behind bars

East Oregonian

A College Place man who reportedly made a run from police ended up behind bars.

Joshua Ray McIntosh, 26, now faces several charges, according to a written statement from Milton-Freewater Police Chief Doug Boedigheimer.

The chief stated that a Milton-Freewater police detective on Tuesday received a request from Walla Walla police to help find McIntosh at a residence on Tum a Lum Road near Birch Creek Road east of Milton-Freewater. McIntosh was driving a newer silver Nissan Altima, according to the report.

The detective followed the car with its two occupants when it left the home. Around 4:20 p.m., according to Boedigheimer, the Nissan's operation become erratic and reckless. The detective turned on his police car's emergency lights and sirens to stop the Nissan, but the driver took off.

Police from Milton-Freewater responded to the area of Spofford and Cemetery roads outside Milton-Freewater to assist. The pursuit entered the city limits and the Nissan stopped on the 100 block of Southwest First Avenue, Boedigheimer reported, and the suspects fled on foot.

Walla Walla police arrived with a dog, which helped locate McIntosh.

Officers arrested McIntosh for felony attempting to elude in a vehicle; misdemeanor attempting to elude on foot; reckless driving; recklessly endangering another person; and violation of a restraining order. Police booked him into the Umatilla County Jail, Pendleton, where he also awaits extradition to Washington.

With support from the Eastern Promise (EP) program, several local students are graduating from high school and also earning their AAOT (Associate of Arts Oregon Transfer) degrees. These students are from component school districts in the InterMountain ESD, partnered by Blue Mountain Community College and Eastern Oregon University.

Students earning dual diplomas:

Umatilla: Steven Ebker, Cameron Sipe, Jeira Carrillo, Salvador Alvarez, Taija Coffey (will finish this summer) and Samantha Ball.

Weston-McEwen: Michael Shafer and Elliebeth Meadows (will finish this summer).

Pendleton: Sam Schmitz

Stanfield: Ryan Bailey

Riverside (Boardman): Bianca Gutierrez

These students represent the first group of students who were introduced to Eastern Promise before the beginning of their high school careers, said Kris Mulvihill, EP coordinator. "About five years ago, when these students were in middle school, they started hearing the consistent, strong message that earning college credits was very possible at their own high schools," Mulvihill said in a press release.
