

OUT OF THE VAULT Germans surrender to Long Creek man as WWII winds up

In the final days of World War II in Europe, as the charred body of Adolf Hitler was dug out of his secret bunker, a Long Creek man took part in a raid on German territory in June 1945 that garnered the surrender of more than 2,000 Nazis, including six generals.

Second Lt. Harold Willingham of Long Creek was part of the Signal Corps attached to the U.S. Third Infantry Division, Seventh Army that was searching for a German command post near Bernau, Austria. Headed by Lt. Col. George Fezell, a group of three wire trucks and a reconnaissance car rolled into Bernau in early June but retreated due to small arms fire. Fezell turned his men loose with a 37mm gun that convinced the bourgomeister of the town to surrender. The headman was also directed by Fezell to call three adjacent towns with orders to give up to the advancing Third Division.

One of the surrendered towns contained the command post Fezell and his men were searching for. Four generals and 300 men at the post were ordered to pile into whatever transportation they could find and report immediately to Bernau, where they surrendered to 2nd Lt. Willingham and 1st Lt. Gilbert of the signal company.

Also bagged in the raid was a nearby airfield, though one pilot jumped into a plane and made his getaway. Following the surrender, Lt. Col. Fezell and his men went to work setting up an advance command post for division headquarters.

DAYS GONE BY

100 Years Ago From the East Oregonian June 3-4, 1917

"Arrest promptly all persons of the prescribed age who refuse or neglect to register tomorrow and all persons who by word or act seek to influence others against registering." These directions were received this morning by Sheriff T.D. Taylor from U.S. District Attorney C.L. Reames who declares that the United States will take immediate and decisive steps to punish all those who seek to defeat the purpose of the selective draft. Sheriff Taylor is instructed to place a deputy sheriff at each polling place in the county to arrest any person who tries to keep others from registering.

Two Pendleton youths, Edward David Hargrow, 20, and Walter Willingham, 19, arrested here by FBI agents March 27 on a charge of kidnapping in connection with the alleged abduction March 25 of Michael Dean Bergevin, 18, and a 17-year-old girl at Toppenish, were back in Umatilla County jail today. The two were returned from federal custody in Portland to Pendleton overnight and are held today in lieu of $10,000 bail each on a charge of rape in connection with the first charge of kidnapping, which apparently U.S. authorities do not intend to pursue further.

Time, like the water in Willow Creek, is running out for Tim Cheney. He is one of a handful of alfalfa, wheat and grass seed farmers in western Morrow County who are betting on the benevolence and quick action of Washington, D.C., officials to authorize the release of water for irrigation from Willow Creek Reservoir. Water from the reservoir, about five miles south of Heppner, has never been contracted for irrigation before, and farmers — aided by county, state and federal officials — are scrambling to get it before their crops burn up. Without the water, Cheney — a 33-year-old father of three who is farming independent of his father for the first time this year — will lose it all.

ODDS & ENDS

Painting break results in town greeting visitors with 'sex'

SUSSEX, Wis. (AP) — A water tower emblazoned with the word "sex" greeted drivers as they passed through a town in southeast Wisconsin, thanks to an ill-timed painting break.

The gaffe turned up in Sussex, a village about 20 miles northwest of Milwaukee.

WTMJ-TV reports that workers painting the town's name on the water tower stopped midway through to allow the paint to dry Wednesday. Village Administrator Jeremy Smith tells the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel the word was fully covered by late Thursday morning.

One driver, Jessica Bruss, told the Milwaukee television station she "almost drove off the road" when her 8-year-old son pointed out the word as they drove past the water tower Wednesday on their way to his first baseball game.

Bruss says the unfinished paint work may be funny for adults, but added: "People should remember that kids are seeing it."

Ivy League admission, as easy as pizza pie

BRENTWOOD, Tenn. (AP) — A Tennessee teen's love for pizza has delivered acceptance at Yale University to her door.

The Tennessean reports Ravenwood High School graduate Carolina Williams was accepted to the Ivy League school in March, with an admissions officer noting her standout answer to a short-essay prompt to write about something she loves to do: order pizza from Papa John's.

Williams says her answer was the first thing that came to mind. She also ranked in the top 10 of her graduating class and participated in multiple extracurricular activities.

She'll be the first in her family to go to college — but will not attend Yale. She will pursue business at Auburn University, saying she felt it was a better fit and liked the scholarships.

RULES
 1 Each row and each column must contain the numbers 1 through 6 without repeating.
 2 The numbers within the heavily outlined boxes, called cages, must combine using the given operation (in any order) to produce the target numbers in the top-left corners.
 3 Freebies: Fill in single-box cages with the number in the top-left corner.

7 LITTLE WORDS

Find the 7 words to match the 7 clues. The numbers in parentheses represent the number of letters in each solution. Each letter combination can be used only once, but all letter combinations will be necessary to complete the puzzle.
