Portland police arrest 14 during rival protests, clashes

By KRISTENA HANSEN
 Associated Press

PORTLAND — Police arrested 14 people as thousands of demonstrators and counter-protesters converged in downtown Portland more than a week after two men were fatally stabbed trying to stop a man from shouting anti-Muslim slurs at teenagers on a light-rail train.

A pro-President Donald Trump free speech rally drew several hundred to a plaza near City Hall on Sunday.

That rally was met across the street by hundreds of counter-protesters organized by immigrant rights, religious and labor groups. They said they wanted to make a stand against hate and racism.

By late afternoon, police closed nearby Chapman Square where a separate group of protesters — many wearing masks and black clothing and identified as anti-fascists — also demonstrated. Police used flash-bang grenades and pepper balls to disperse that crowd after saying protesters were hurling bricks and other objects at officers.

The people gathered at the free speech rally organized by the conservative group Patriot Prayer and counter-protesters at City Hall were not involved in those clashes, police said.

Portland police said Sunday evening that several dozen knives, bricks, sticks and other weapons were seized.

The Patriot Prayer event was billed as a Trump Free Speech Rally in “one of the most liberal areas of the West Coast.”

were stabbed to death and pleaded with the crowd to refrain from violence. He later told them that the goal is to wake up the liberty movement. “It’s OK to be a conservative in Portland,” he said.

Last week Mayor Ted Wheeler unsuccessfully tried to have the permit for the free speech rally revoked, saying it could further enflame tensions following the May 26 stabbings.

The suspect in the light-rail stabbings, Jeremy Joseph Christian, 35, attended a similar rally in late April wearing an American flag around his neck and carrying a baseball bat. Police confiscated the bat, and he was then caught on camera clashing with counter-protesters.

In a video posted on Facebook, Gibson condemned Christian and acknowledged that some rallies have attracted “legitimate Nazis.” He described Christian as “all crazy” and “not a good guy.” Matthew Eggiman, 19, who lives in Corvallis, said he showed up Sunday to oppose bigotry and racism. He worried that hateful rhetoric would embolden others. But he also condemned protesters who show up hoping to provoke violence.

The Rev. Diane Dulin of the United Church of Christ said in a statement ahead of the day’s events that any act of violence in the community should be met by non-violence.

“We build our hope and our stamina for justice by showing up,” said Dulin, part of a coalition of groups that organized rally to oppose hate.

Authorities say that on May 26 Christian killed two men and injured another on the light-rail train when they tried to help after he verbally abused two young women, one wearing a hijab. Christian is charged with aggravated murder and other counts.

UmCo Judge Daniel J. Hill promoted to brigadier general

East Oregonian

Umatilla County Circuit Court Judge Daniel J. Hill is now a brigadier general in the Oregon Army National Guard.

Hill was promoted during a ceremony on Sunday at the 41st Infantry Division Armed Forces Reserve Center Camp Withycombe in Clackamas.

With Hill’s promotion comes new responsibilities. He was previously serving as the National Guard’s State Judge Advocate but will now serve as the assistant to the chief counsel of the U.S. Army National Guard. According to an Oregon Military Department news release, Hill will advise the Judge Advocate General concerning the technical supervision and rating of National Guard military judges (at state request), legal personnel training, readiness and related military law matters as well as performing other duties as requested by the chief council.

The position will be part-time and can mostly be done remotely, allowing Hill to continue in his civilian position as a circuit judge in Umatilla County and Morrow County.

Maj. Gen. Michael E. Stencel, Adjutant General for Oregon, called Hill a “true Citizen-Soldier” in a statement announcing the promotion.

“A true Citizen-Soldier, Col. Hill’s selection is a testament not only to his performance in the Oregon

Hill

National Guard, but also to his proven abilities and years of service as a circuit court judge in Umatilla County,” Stencel said.

Hill was born in Pendleton and raised in Hermiston. He received his Juris Doctorate from Willamette University College of Law, his Bachelor of Science in business administration from Oregon State University and his Associate of Arts degree from Blue Mountain Community College.

He was the legislative aide to State Representative and retired U.S. Army Colonel Charles “Chuck” Norris before being commissioned directly into the Judge Advocate General
