

BEAVERS: Play winner of Florida State and LSU start things didn't go well for us."

Starter Eric Walker (8-2) left the game after throwing four pitches in the third inning because of forearm tightness. Caleb Gilbert held the Beavers for a couple of innings, but they capitalized on a couple of LSU misplays to go up 3-0 in the fifth.

"They're definitely a scrappy offense," Gilbert said. "I thought I was making some good pitches. They would just foul it off, and I'd have to go right back at it, do it again. Just couldn't get that put-away when it was crunch time."

Oregon State broke the game open in the sixth.

Harrison hammered Hunter Newman's first pitch to him over the left-center fence for the first CWS grand slam since 2010, the last year the event was played at Rosenblatt Stadium.

Harrison broke into a wide smile as he watched the ball fly out, his trot turned into a run and he whooped and pounded his chest as he approached teammates waiting at home plate. Harrison has four home runs and 14 RBIs in seven NCAA Tournament games.

"That's the stuff you dream of doing," Harrison said, "and for it to come true on such a big stage is an amazing feeling."

Fehmel (6-2), who pitched a complete game in the Beavers' super regional-clinching win over Vanderbilt on June 10, made his second postseason start since the rotation was adjusted to account for the loss of Luke Heimlich.

Fehmel wiggled out of a mini jam in the fifth before Zach Watson's homer in the seventh allowed LSU to avoid getting shut out for the first time in its 62 CWS games.

"I guess the main thing was to keep them off-balance as best I could," Fehmel said. "I mixed all three pitches for strikes, and I did that for eight innings to the best of my ability, and it worked out."

LOTS OF PITCHERS

LSU used eight pitchers to tie the CWS record for most in a game. Walker and Gilbert were the only ones to work at least two innings. Those eight pitchers combined to walk 12 Oregon State batters, which is the most in a single game in Mainieri's 11 years at LSU.

HE DOESN'T GIVE UP MANY Newman, LSU's former closer, had not allowed a home run this season until Harrison's grand slam. It was only the second home run Newman has allowed in the 100 innings he's worked since his freshman season in 2015.

MORE ON THAT SLAM

There were 196 bases-loaded at-bats in the CWS between Matt Curry's grand slam for TCU in 2010 and Harrison's slam Monday. It was the sixth slam hit at the stadium in 313 total games since 2011. Creighton plays its home games at the park.

Oregon State awaits Florida State or LSU in the Bracket 1 final on Friday at 3 p.m.. The Tigers play Florida State (46-22) in an elimination game on Wednesday at 7 p.m.

MARINERS:

from Triple-A Tacoma on May 23 gave Seattle the lead. Quickly behind in the count against Alex Wilson (1-4), Zunino worked it to 3-2 and drove a slider beyond the bullpens in deep left field.

Zunino added one more with a shot over the center field wall in the eighth inning off Francisco Rodriguez.

Since returning from the minors with a retooled stance and approach at the plate, Zunino is hitting .338 with 28 RBIs. He's already set a new franchise record for the most RBIs in a month by a catcher.

Four Seattle relievers combined to hold Detroit to two hits over the final four innings. James Pazos (2-1) got out of a bases-loaded jam with strikeouts of Mikie Mahtook and Andrew Romine in the sixth.

Heredia's homer was his fifth of the season and the only major mistake by starter Anibal Sanchez. Making his first start of the season, Sanchez scattered five hits over five innings. He pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the second inning but couldn't get through the fifth unscathed.

Sanchez had made 11 appearances as a reliever for Detroit before being sent to Triple-A Toledo and making four starts in the minors.

Seattle starter Sam Gaviglio struggled with his control, walking four and letting his pitch count climb early, but avoided any big innings. Gaviglio made it through five innings, allowing just a bases-loaded groundout and Ian Kinsler's RBI double. But Gaviglio's spot on the 25-man roster is uncertain with the return of Felix Hernandez and possibly Hisashi Iwakuma to the rotation later this week.

ON THE FARM

Iwakuma and SS Jean Segura both struggled in their rehab outings at Triple-A Tacoma on Monday. Iwakuma lasted just two innings, giving up four runs and four hits. He was supposed to throw 70 to 75 pitches, but was pulled after throwing just 49. Segura, recovering from a high ankle sprain, played five innings at shortstop and was 0 for 3. The Mariners hope to get Segura back later this week.

UP NEXT

Tigers: Jordan Zimmermann (5-5) tries for his fourth straight quality start.

Mariners: Ariel Miranda (6-3) looks to rebound from a loss in his last start when he allowed 10 hits and six runs. The loss snapped a five-game win streak.
