Don enjoyed buying and selling antiques and collectibles and started a business called "Grandkids Inheritance." He was known as "Dealin' Don" to many associates at estate sales and auctions. He enjoyed fishing, hunting, camping and was an avid poker player. He cherished his family, and his grandchildren were his pride and joy. He enjoyed attending their activities and sporting events. He was involved with many community organizations such as: president of the Hermiston Band Boosters, where he assisted in raising money for the band to travel to Europe; Pacific Northwest Clean Water Association, where he received the William D. Hatfield Award for outstanding performance and professionalism in 1988; John Day City Council member from 2002-2014; actively involved in the Grant County Senior Center in John Day; and member of the Elks Lodge for 44 years and the Eagles Lodge.

Don married JoAn Arnold in Hinsdale, Mont., on August 1, 1967, and from this marriage two sons, Jeff and David, were born. The couple divorced many years later. He married Carolyn Mayden on December 7, 1997, in Walla Walla, Wash.

Man charged in Portland train attack: 'No heroes in this case'

PORTLAND, (AP) — The man accused of killing two passengers and wounding a third on a Portland train returned to court Tuesday for a quick hearing in which he told spectators on his way out: "Remember, there are no heroes in this case."

Jeremy Christian, 35, said nothing else as Multnomah County Judge Cheryl Albrecht scheduled a bail hearing for Oct. 20. He remains in jail.

Christian has pleaded not guilty to aggravated murder, attempted murder, assault, menacing, intimidation and unlawful use of a weapon.

Prosecutors say Christian boarded the light-rail train May 26 and yelled hateful comments at two black teenage girls, one of whom was wearing an Islamic head covering called a hijab.

When the girls moved away, he turned his attention to three men, stabbing each of them in the neck. The men — Taliesin Namkai-Meche, Ricky Best and surviving victim Micah Fletcher — have been called heroes for confronting Christian.

Christian disputed the hero narrative at his previous court appearance, yelling that he was defending himself against the "violent aggression" of Fletcher. Prosecutor Ryan Lufkin wrote in affidavit that video shows Fletcher was shoved in the chest by Christian and then pushed back, causing Christian to stumble. Then the stabbings occurred.

Fletcher was not in the courtroom Tuesday after attending Christian's prior hearings.

Four charges in Christian's indictment stem from a confrontation Christian had with a black woman at a light-rail station a day before the killings. He hit her in the face with a bottle before she pepper-sprayed him, Portland police Sgt. Pete Simpson said.
