Woman: Train stabbings could have been prevented

PORTLAND (AP) — A woman says Portland police could have prevented fatal stabbings aboard a light-rail train if they had taken her earlier complaint against Jeremy Christian more seriously.

Demetria Hester spoke out for the first time Friday, saying Christian threw a bottle at her on May 25 — causing her to bleed — after she complained about his on-train rant against blacks, Jews and others.

The 42-year-old says she sprayed Christian with mace, and transit police let him get away after he rinsed his face in a fountain.

Christian has been in jail since May 26, when police say he stabbed three passengers — two fatally — after going into an anti-Muslim tirade. Four other charges in Christian's indictment stem from the confrontation with Hester. He has pleaded not guilty.

Police responded Friday that Hester did not identify Christian as the bottle thrower until after he started walking away.

Golden retriever digs up heroin in Oregon backyard

MCMINNVILLE (AP) — An Oregon family's golden retriever has been honored by a sheriff for digging up $85,000 worth of black tar heroin in a family's backyard.

KATU-TV reported Friday that the owners of the 18-month-old dog named Kenyon thought he had dug up a time capsule in their backyard, so they decided to film themselves opening it.

As they did, they realized Kenyon had found drugs. Yamhill County Sheriff Tim Svenson identified the substance as more than 15 ounces of black tar heroin. Svenson presented Kenyon with an official ribbon and named him an honorary narcotics dog for life.
