Jerry Lewis dies at 91

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jerry Lewis epitomized what it meant to be a survivor in Hollywood. Through ups and downs in popularity, health troubles and weight fluctuations and the sorts of seismic shifts that take place over decades in the entertainment industry, Lewis always figured out a way to battle back, to reinvent himself, to stay relevant. It's what enduring stars know how to do instinctively; perhaps it's that very drive that makes them stars in the first place. Through it all, Lewis remained the consummate showman, and his distinctive comic legacy surely will continue to survive for decades to come. The manic, rubber-faced performer who jumped and hollered to fame in a stage, radio, TV and film partnership with Dean Martin, settled to become a self-conscious auteur in movies he wrote, produced and directed, and found new fame as the tireless, teary host of the annual muscular dystrophy telethons, died Sunday at home in Las Vegas surrounded by family. He was 91.

Lewis, who had battled the lung disease pulmonary fibrosis, heart issues, a debilitating back problem and addiction to pain killers, died of natural causes, according to his publicist. His career spanned the history of show business in the 20th century, beginning in his parents' vaudeville act at the age of 5. He was just 20 when his pairing with Martin made them international stars. After their cold parting in 1956, Lewis made such favorites as "The Bellboy" and "The Nutty Professor," was featured in Martin Scorsese's "The King of Comedy" and appeared as himself in Billy Crystal's "Mr. Saturday Night." In the 1990s, he scored a stage comeback as the devil in the Broadway revival of "Damn Yankees." In his 80s, he was still traveling the world, planning to remake some of his earlier movies and working on a stage version of "The Nutty Professor." He was so active he would sometimes forget the basics, like eating, his associates would recall. In 2012, Lewis missed an awards ceremony thrown by his beloved Friars Club because his blood sugar dropped from lack of food and he had to spend the night in the hospital. In an interview with The Associated Press from 2016, Lewis, at 90 and promoting the film "Max Rose," said he still woke up every day at 4:30 or 5 in the morning to write, and he had a handful of standup shows on the schedule.

OBITUARIES

Jabudah L. (Coombes, Miller) Grossmiller

Hermiston
March 14, 1923 - July 3, 2017

Jabudah Grossmiller of Hermiston, Oregon, was born on March 14, 1923, in Seattle, Wash., as the first child of Oscar and Maude Coombes. Jabudah passed on July 3, 2017, at the age of 94. In 1928 the family moved to Baker, Oregon, and continued to live there until Jabudah was grown. On December 3, 1942, Jabudah was united in marriage to Donald H. Miller in Weiser, Idaho. The young couple moved to Boise, Idaho, and started a family. Raymond Miller, Sheila Miller (Cross), Linda Miller and Penelope Miller (Pollard, Cano) were all born in Boise. In 1950 the family moved to Echo Meadows and then bought a small farm north of Hermiston. Benjamin Miller completed the family in 1953.

Grossmiller

Jabudah worked part-time at different jobs to help out with the family finances but first and foremost Jabudah was a wife and mother. In the 1970s, Jabudah went to work for Lamb Weston and later worked as a federal food inspector, traveling all of the Northwest. Jabudah retired in 1984 after her husband Donald passed away on December 29, 1983. Jabudah's greatest pleasure was traveling with Don all over the United States and abroad. On June 25, 1988, Jabudah was united in marriage to Alan Grossmiller. Jabudah and Alan embarked on many wonderful travels including moving to Baker City and then returning to Hermiston in 2002.

Jabudah enjoyed photography, sewing, painting and drawing, writing poetry, cake decorating, gardening, traveling, music and all her wonderful grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren. Jabudah is survived by her husband of 29 years, Alan Grossmiller; daughters Linda Miller and Sheila Miller (Cross) of Hermiston; sons Raymond Miller and wife Barbara of Portland, and Benjamin Miller of Hermiston; brothers Benjamin Coombes and wife Doris of Hermiston, Jasper Coombes and wife Lois of Baker City, George Coombes of Seligman, Missouri, and Edward Coombes and wife Karen of Spalding, Idaho; and many grandchildren, great-grandchildren, great-great-grandchildren, nieces and nephews.

Jabudah was preceded in death by her first husband, Donald H. Miller; daughter Penelope Miller (Pollard, Cano) and her first husband Cecil Pollard; parents Oscar and Maude Coombes; sister Erma and her husband Clifford Gray; brother Donald Coombes; and sisters-in-law Perry, Elise and Jean Coombes, and Iris and husband Pete Blake. A memorial service will be held Saturday at 11:00, August 26, 2017, at the Stanfield Baptist Church. Donations can be made to the Hermiston VFW or your favorite charity. Louise Edwina Thompson

Yuma, Arizona
August 5, 2017

Louise Edwina Thompson, age 85, beloved mother and friend, passed away at home on August 5 in Yuma, Arizona. Born in Belvedere, California, she spent the bulk of her life in Oregon with the rest in California, Montana, and Arizona. After retirement she was a snowbird, splitting time between Pendleton, Oregon, and Yuma, Arizona. She loved the RV life before eventually settling into a home on a patch of desert in the Arizona sunshine. She was so proud to be a homeowner.

Thompson

She was the textbook definition of a "people person." As a wage earner, she worked primarily in the retail and service industries in Pendleton, where she loved meeting and greeting and was always a customer favorite. After retirement, she continued to charm her friends and neighbors at home and at church. You'd be hard pressed to find anyone who didn't adore her.

But the people she loved the most were her children. She worked very hard to provide for them to the best of her abilities, and made all decisions with their welfare in mind. When she couldn't be with them, they occupied her mind each and every day. Rounding out her life were her pets. She loved her four-legged children.

She was preceded in death by her husband Bill Thompson in 2006. Survivors include her children, Steven, Marsha, Bill, Colleen, Laurie, Larry and Joni, and many grandchildren and great-grandchildren, all of whom will miss her dearly.

A celebration of life will be held on Oct. 5 at Foothills Southern Baptist Church in Yuma, Arizona.
