Police: Michigan student killed parents in university dorm

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP) — More than 100 police officers, some heavily armed in camouflage uniforms, searched neighborhoods near Central Michigan University on Friday for a 19-year-old student suspected of killing his parents at a dormitory and then running from campus. The shooting at Campbell Hall happened on a day when parents were arriving to pick up students for the beginning of a week-long spring break. Police released a photo of James Eric Davis Jr., urging the public to call 911 if they see him but also warning that he shouldn't be confronted. Hours after a campus lockdown, police started a "slow, methodical removal" of staff and students who were ordered to take shelter in campus buildings, Lt. Larry Klaus said. "He should be considered armed and dangerous," Klaus said of Davis. The university identified the two dead as his parents, James Davis Sr. and Diva Davis. The shooting occurred around 8:30 a.m. at a residence hall at Central Michigan, which is about 70 miles north of Lansing. Klaus said video at the dorm suggests Davis fled on foot after the shooting. He was wearing a hoodie but had been shedding certain clothes while on the run. "This has been a tragic day. ... The hurting will go on for a while," said university President George Ross.

Deputies told to form perimeter at school shooting

PARKLAND, Fla. (AP) — A sheriff's office captain told deputies to form a perimeter instead of rushing into the Florida high school where 17 people were killed in a mass shooting, according to documents obtained by the Miami Herald. The newspaper reported late Thursday that it had obtained a partial Broward Sheriff's Office dispatch log, which showed that Capt. Jan Jordan gave the order for deputies to establish a perimeter. An earlier report on the call logs published by Fox News showed that the shooting at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School would have been over by the time Jordan gave her order. However, the log may raise fresh questions about the department's handling of the mass shooting on Feb. 14, including whether police could have gone in sooner to help the wounded. "If detectives had answers to all of the questions, then there would be no need for an investigation," sheriff's office spokeswoman Veda Coleman-Wright wrote in an email to the Herald late Thursday. Sheriff Scott Israel has said his office's training and nationwide active-shooter procedure call for armed law enforcement officers to confront shooters immediately rather than secure a scene. He has blasted Deputy Scot Peterson, the school's resource officer, for not entering the school building while 19-year-old former student Nikolas Cruz was shooting. Israel told CNN that Coral Springs Police were the first law enforcement officers to enter the building, about four minutes after Cruz left the school. Peterson resigned and has defended his actions.

In this Feb. 14 file photo, students hold their hands in the air as they are evacuated by police from Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, Fla., after a shooter opened fire on the campus.

The sheriff's office has not responded to requests for the logs from The Associated Press. The agency and the Florida Department of Law Enforcement are investigating the actions of officers responding to the shooting. The head of the Broward Sheriff's Office Deputies Association called for more transparency in the investigation in a Miami Herald report Friday, saying Israel should release all surveillance videos, audio recordings and dispatch logs documenting the law enforcement response to the school. "Our deputies are being called cowards in public, even if they had nothing to do with (the shooting response)," said Jeff Bell. "The deputies on the street are the ones taking the heat."

On Friday afternoon, Florida Gov. Rick Scott proclaimed Feb. 14 as Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School Remembrance Day. Scott invited Floridians to join him for a moment of silence at 3 p.m. Saturday, which is 17 days after 17 people died during a shooting at the Parkland school. Also Saturday, the Florida Senate is scheduled to hold a rare Saturday session to consider a bill addressing school safety and gun sales. The bill was scheduled to be heard Friday, but it was postponed so the Senate could keep working behind the scenes to reach an agreement with the House on bill language. Saturday's session will allow questions on the bill, but a final Senate vote wouldn't be held until Monday.

Oregon school principal abused student for years

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Police and school documents indicate a high school principal in western Oregon had sexually abused a student for years, but officials failed to uncover the abuse despite suspicions from faculty members. The Register-Guard reports Springfield police launched an investigation in late January after a teacher alerted authorities to an overheard rumor involving Academy of Arts and Academics Principal Mike Fisher. The Springfield School District placed Fisher on leave, and he killed himself last month. District officials say they responded as soon as they learned about the allegations against Fisher. Police interviewed the victim, who said the abuse began when she was 14 and continued into her adulthood. A parent alerted administrators to Fisher's possible inappropriate behavior in 2007, but the report did not lead to criminal charges.

Oregon State Police spokesman barred from going near wife

PORTLAND (AP) — The estranged wife of an Oregon State Police spokesman has obtained a restraining order against him. The Oregonian/OregonLive reported Friday that the petition was filed on the same day Capt. Bill Fugate was placed on paid administrative leave because of a criminal investigation. The Fugates have been going through a divorce. The restraining-order petition says Georgina Monrean-Fugate contacted the Deschutes County Sheriff's Office on Tuesday to report that her husband had threatened her in November while possessing a gun. Deschutes County Sheriff Shane Nelson declined to discuss the criminal investigation, but said it began after a complaint was received Tuesday, and it has nothing to do with Fugate's conduct on the job.

Court rules against Oregon Republican in defamation lawsuit

PORTLAND (AP) — The Oregon Court of Appeals ruled against former state Rep. Matt Wingard in his defamation lawsuit against a group of conservative opponents. The Wilsonville Republican left the Legislature in 2012 after revelations of a sexual relationship with a legislative aide. When he tried to return four years later, the Oregon Family Council and other groups sent mailers ahead of the primary election that said Wingard had pressured the 20-year-old woman into having sex with him. Wingard acknowledged the relationship, but said it was consensual. The Appeals Court said Wingard failed to show the groups were reckless in using the word "pressured." Multiple news outlets used it when the woman went public in 2012. Attorney Thomas Rask told The Oregonian/OregonLive that he and Wingard are weighing whether to appeal to the Oregon Supreme Court.

Residents asked to help in search for missing woman

BEND (AP) — Police searching for a missing Bend woman have asked residents on the east side of that city to check their properties for clues. Police want residents to report anything out of the ordinary, and reminded them to inspect abandoned structures, open fields or any water sources on their properties. Meanwhile, KTVZ reports that investigators were at Knott Landfill on Thursday, searching through trash piles for evidence in the disappearance of 24-year-old Sara Gomez.

BRIEFLY

Gomez was last seen Feb. 19. Her ex-boyfriend, Bryan Penner, was arrested two days later, accused of violating the restraining order Gomez took out against him. He has pleaded not guilty to charges of contempt of court. He has not been charged in her disappearance.

Man sues Oregon strip club where dancer threw bottle at him

PORTLAND (AP) — A 28-year-old man who says he still has scars on his forehead two years after an adult dancer threw a beer glass at him has filed a lawsuit against her Oregon strip club. The Oregonian/OregonLive reported Thursday that Cholo Circulado is seeking $50,000 in damages. Circulado acknowledged that he told the Acropolis strip club dancer in March 2016 to take off her clothes using lewd terms and threw a dollar bill folded into a paper airplane at her. Police say the dancer, then-23-year-old Aryanne Elyse Curcio, told officers she might have overreacted. An attorney for the strip club couldn't be reached for comment.
