BRIEFLY

Army to perform exercises in Pendleton and at McNary Dam

PENDLETON — Army soldiers will descend on Eastern Oregon from March 26-30 for routine military exercises. According to a Friday press release, the military personnel will be from U.S. Army Special Operations Command from Joint-Base Lewis-McChord near Tacoma, Washington, and perform their exercises at locations including the Eastern Oregon Regional Airport in Pendleton and the McNary Dam near Umatilla. The exercises will be between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m. and involve low-flying helicopters and airplanes, simulated munitions and light pyrotechnics. The exercises are meant to maintain the troops' combat readiness by simulating an urban environment during a battle. "The unit is extremely sensitive to the impact that this military exercise may have on communities; we intend to train safely and courteously," the press release states. "Every measure will be taken to reduce the amount of noise associated with this exercise. As with all military exercises, safety is the first priority. Soldiers will receive up-to-date safety briefings, and safety standards must be observed at all times during the training." The training has already been coordinated with the city, local law enforcement, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and public safety officials. The exercises are not open to the public.

BMCC to fill board vacancy

PENDLETON — A Blue Mountain Community College Board of Education position has come open. Board member Susan Plass resigned her seat at Wednesday night's board meeting. Plass is vacating the position she's held since July 2015 because she's moving out of the area. Plass represents Zone 7, which includes north Pendleton and north-central Umatilla County. Interested citizens may apply for the position by submitting a letter of interest to the Board of Education by Friday, April 6. The Board expects to screen and appoint an applicant at its May 2 meeting in Pendleton. The applicant selected by the board will serve in the position through June 30, 2019, when the term expires. Interested candidates should be registered voters in Umatilla County, as well as residents of Zone 7. Applicants should send a letter of interest to the BMCC Board of Education, PO Box 100, Pendleton, OR 97801, or email to sfranklin@bluecc.edu. For more information, contact the BMCC President's Office, 541-278-5951.

Umatilla library hosts Spring Break activities

UMATILLA — Parents wondering what to do with their kids during Spring Break, March 26-30, can visit the Umatilla Public Library for some fun activities for all youth. The library, at 700 Sixth St., will provide Legos, Duplos and Planks for building fun; hold a drawing contest with prizes; offer board games, puzzles and toys; and show kids how to make their own pinwheels. Also, movies will be shown from 1-3 p.m. on Monday ("Coco"), Wednesday ("Ferdinand") and Friday ("The Stray"). For more information on days and times for specific activities, contact the library at 541-922-5704.

OHSU president to earn big pension

PORTLAND (AP) — The former president of Oregon Health & Science University will receive $913,000 in annual pension — the top public pension in Oregon — according to an updated pension roll. The Oregon Public Employees Retirement System pays more than $76,000 each month to Joe Robertson, the retired president of OHSU, The Oregonian/OregonLive reported Thursday. Robertson retired at the end of last October after working for the university for 33 years. His long career at the university and high salary in his last three years, which averaged nearly $1.7 million, were factors of his high pension. Robertson's pension surpasses that of university neurosurgeon Johnny Delashaw, who retired in 2015 and receives annual benefits of nearly $685,000. It also exceeds the pension of former University of Oregon football coach

Mike Bellotti, who retired in 2010 and receives about $559,000 in annual benefits. The state retirement system releases the updated pension roll each year to the newspaper. The updated database includes information on nearly 130,000 people receiving pension benefits as of January. Recent retirees receive on average about $32,000 annually through the state system. About 2,000 beneficiaries earn more than $100,000 each year. The 66-year-old retiree isn't fully retired. Robertson is continuing to serve as president through the end of the academic year without a salary. He also plans to continue his work with one of the university's health institutes. "The only reason I'm retiring is for health reasons," Robertson said. "This isn't a job, it's a lifestyle, and you have to be all in."

Oregon AG considers investigating Facebook

SALEM (AP) — Oregon's attorney general says she is reviewing whether to launch an investigation of Facebook, including whether it violated a state law that protects online customers' private information. Attorney General Ellen Rosenblum told The Associated Press that she and several other state attorneys general are drafting a letter to Facebook, asking about a leak of Facebook customers' data without their knowledge or consent. "We're just full of unanswered questions at this point, and whether or not it's going to blossom into a full-scale investigation is still somewhat up for grabs," Rosenblum said in a telephone interview late Thursday.

Others are also looking into Facebook: Overseas, a British parliamentary committee has summoned CEO Mark Zuckerberg to testify, Israel says it is launching an investigation into Facebook, and Germany's justice minister says she is calling in Facebook's European leadership to explain the scandal. U.S. Sen. Dianne Feinstein of California wants Zuckerberg's assurances that Facebook is prepared to take the lead on protecting people's privacy. Other members of Congress have requested information from Facebook. New Jersey Attorney General Gurbir Grewal said his office is investigating how personal information came into the possession of Cambridge Analytica.
