

Junis carries no-no into seventh, Royals rout Mariners 10-0

By DAVE SKRETTA
Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Jakob Junis carried a no-hit bid into the seventh inning, the Royals scored more runs than they had in their last six games combined, and Kansas City routed the Seattle Mariners 10-0 on Monday night.

Junis (2-0) hit three batters and walked two, but the quick-working right-hander did not allow a hit until Daniel Vogelbach's grounder up the middle with one out in the seventh.

Junis finished up the inning without any more trouble, running his scoreless streak to 14 innings to start the season. He was given a standing ovation when his night was done by the announced crowd of 12,324, most of whom promptly filed out with temperatures just above freezing.

By that point, everybody in the Royals lineup but Drew Butera had scored off Marco Gonzales (1-1) and the Seattle bullpen — and all the catcher had done was drive in a couple of runs.

Mike Moustakas homered in the eighth off infielder Taylor Motter as Seattle saved its 'pen.

Gonzalez allowed four runs, eight hits and a walk for the Mariners while retiring seven batters, and reliever Casey Lawrence promptly allowed five more runs while getting five more outs.

Kansas City's offensive outburst on a cold, blustery night came out of nowhere. The club had been held to a single run in four of its previous five games, and two runs in the other. The Royals hadn't scored more than three runs in a game since a season-opening 14-7 loss to the White Sox.

IB Ryon Healy flew back to Seattle on Monday to meet with Dr. Edward Khalfayan and review an MRI of his ankle, which he hurt Saturday during a post-game workout. Healy was put on the DL retroactive to Sunday and RHP Chasen Bradford was recalled from Triple-A Tacoma.

Kane to be US captain, Blashill coach at world championships

By STEPHEN WHYNO
Associated Press

Patrick Kane has a history of making things a big deal.

When Blackhawks teammate Adam Burish and his agent Bill Zito wanted to put in a charity game during the previous NHL lockout in 2012-13, Kane jumped on board and helped generate buzz for the event in the Chicago suburbs.

Zito hasn't forgotten that and on Monday got to name Kane as the United States captain for the upcoming IIHF World Hockey Championship next month in Denmark.

"When we talked to him about this, his passion for hockey, his enthusiasm for the game is wonderful," Zito told The Associated Press by phone. "Just thrilled that he's part of it."

Kane last played at the world championships in 2008, his first in the NHL and the last time the Blackhawks missed the playoffs. The three-time Stanley Cup winner's presence should improve the quality of play at the tournament and the interest in fellow U.S. players to join him.

"I think what it says is it doesn't matter where you are in hockey, if you love the game, you want to be part of it and respect USA Hockey and Pat Kane showed up," Zito said. "It's really exciting. I think it's exciting for the whole tournament. It's a great day for USA Hockey and for hockey in general."

Kane played for the U.S. at the 2010 and 2014 Olympics and next month will lead a strong team that includes Buffalo Sabres rookie and world junior MVP Casey Mittelstadt and possibly Detroit Red Wings forward Dylan Larkin.

"Any time you get to wear the USA sweater, it's super exciting," Mittelstadt said. "So for me, to go out there and get to play with some of the best American players and obviously make a push for a gold medal, it's really good for my development."

Jeff Blashill, who coaches Larkin in Detroit, is back after making his international coaching debut at worlds a year ago.

"He's experienced," Zito said of Blashill. "He's been there before. He was hungry to go. And I think he brings a nice balance. He brings a great balance of the technical expertise of the game — he's a student of the game and he's studying, he's always into the little nuances that make up a game — as well as the personal, one-on-one to get the most out of the individuals."

Former Pittsburgh Penguins and Sabres coach Dan Bylsma, Blackhawks assistant Don Granato and U.S. National Team Development Program coach Seth Appert were named as Blashill's assistants. Granato is an assistant months after brother Tony was coach of the U.S. Olympic team.

Hockey Canada named Bill Peters of the Carolina Hurricanes as its head coach for the tournament with Florida's Bob Boughner and St. Louis' Mike Yeo as assistants. NHL leading scorer Connor McDavid and likely rookie of the year Mathew Barzal are among those expected to play for Canada.

"Canada has always managed to bring together elite-level coaches and players, and we're again fortunate to be led by an experienced coaching staff for this year's world championship," co-general manager Sean Burke said.

Correction

In the April 7 edition's prep roundup story, the results from the Pendleton Country Club small-school invite were incorrectly reported. Burns won the boys team title with a score of 401, while Heppner was third with a 428, Pendleton JV sixth with a 449 and Hermiston JV eighth with a 477. Nixyaawii's Riley Lankford was co-low medalist with an 82 score as well. Heppner won the girls team title with a score of 430, led by Nicole Prophetor's round of 92, and La Grande was second with 460.
