Edmiston said city ordinance requires them to keep found property for 30 days. He said internal police department policy is to keep items for 60 days, and that after that time, they will have to make a decision about what to do with unclaimed property.

“If we can get rid of 40 percent, I’ll be happy,” Edmiston said.

Edmiston said as per department policy, they will send Greene a letter that he has 30 days to claim any property that he can prove is his. He said they must do so because since they seized property from him, theoretically some of it could belong to Greene.

He said officers will also do a weekly media post asking people to check their storage units and report any more thefts. Once they have finished documenting the items, he said, they will turn the case over to the district attorney’s office.

Officers first located stolen property at a Hermiston home after receiving a tip on April 5, and soon found more stolen merchandise at storage units in Umatilla. On April 9, officers seized more stolen property from Dun Rollin Trailer Court on West Jennie Avenue.

Edmiston said on Tuesday that two more truckloads were seized the previous day from an apartment. Greene was associated with, and had since vacated.

Greene has been arrested several times in Hermiston, most recently in December 2017 for identity theft and fraudulent use of a credit card. —

McConnell shuts down bill to protect Mueller

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell on Tuesday thwarted a bipartisan effort to protect special counsel Robert Mueller’s job, saying he will not hold a floor vote on the legislation even if it is approved next week in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

McConnell said the bill is unnecessary because President Donald Trump will not fire Mueller.

“We’ll not be having this on the floor of the Senate,” McConnell said on Fox News.

His comments came amid widespread opposition to the bill among members of his caucus, with several GOP senators saying the bill is unconstitutional. Others said it’s simply not good politics to try and tell Trump what to do, likening the legislation to “poking the bear.”

The bipartisan legislation was introduced last week as Trump publicly criticized Mueller, who is investigating potential ties between Russia and Trump’s 2016 campaign as well as possible obstruction of justice by the president. Trump, fuming about a raid of his personal lawyer’s office by a different division of the FBI, said last week that the Mueller investigation is “an attack on our country” and is “corrupt.”

Trump has also privately pondered firing Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein, who is overseeing Mueller’s investigation.

Within a day of Trump’s criticism, Republicans Thom Tillis of North Carolina and Lindsey Graham of South Carolina combined two bills they introduced last summer to protect special counsels. They introduced the new bill along with Democratic Sens. Chris Coons of Delaware and Cory Booker of New Jersey, and Senate Judiciary Chairman Chuck Grassley, a Republican, announced that his committee would vote on the bill.

The legislation would give any special counsel a 10-day window to seek expedited judicial review of a firing, and would put into law existing Justice Department regulations that require a firing to be for “good cause.”

Democrats immediately jumped on the legislation, but many Republicans have been cool to it.

At least three of the 11 GOP members of the Judiciary panel have said they will vote against it and another five have said they have questions about its constitutionality. Grassley is one of those with concerns, but said he felt obligated to hold a vote.

U.S. officials say Pompeo has met with NKorea’s Kim

By MATTHEW LEE
AND ZEKE MILLER

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — CIA Director Mike Pompeo recently traveled to North Korea to meet with leader Kim Jong Un, two U.S. officials said Tuesday.

The highly unusual, secret visit comes as the enemy nations prepare for a meeting between President Donald Trump and Kim, in what would be the first ever summit between U.S. and North Korean during more than six decades of hostility since the Korean War. The officials spoke anonymously about Pompeo’s trip because they were not authorized to discuss it publicly.

The Washington Post, which first reported Pompeo’s meeting with Kim, said it took place over Easter weekend — just over two weeks ago, shortly after the CIA chief was nominated to become secretary of state.

Trump, who is currently at his Florida resort meeting with Japanese leader Shinzo Abe, said Tuesday that the U.S. and North Korea were holding direct talks at “extremely high levels” in preparation for a possible summit with Kim.

But White House Press Secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders said Trump and Kim have not spoken directly.

Trump is planning to meet with Kim by early June. The goal will be bring an end to North Korea’s nuclear weapons program, which poses a growing threat to the U.S. mainland.

The U.S. and North Korea do not have formal diplomatic relations, complicating the arrangements for contacts between the two governments. It is not unprecedented for U.S. intelligence officials to serve as a conduit for communication with Pyongyang.

In 2014, then-Director of National Intelligence James Clapper secretly visited North Korea to bring back two American detainees.

FUND: Nonprofit will generate its own revenue through member dues

Finance Director Linda Carter said Pendleton generates $150,000 per year from business license fees, the lion’s share of revenue split between the Pendleton Convention Center and the Eastern Oregon Regional Airport.

Although the downtown association’s operational costs are covered for the next two years, it will have to start making up the difference in 2020.

Molly Turner, the executive director of the association, said the nonprofit will generate its own revenue through member dues, corporate sponsorships, fundraising and contract jobs for services like grant writing and its mystery shopper program.

The association’s quest for public funding had the steadfast support of City Manager Robb Corbett, who helped negotiate a new proposal after Mayor John Turner declined to hold a vote on the association’s last proposal due to councilor concerns.

While the agreement commits money to the association in perpetuity, the council has the right to review the deal’s effectiveness between years two and three.
