Adrian College and an master's degree in photography from Kendall College of Art and Design.

A member of the Society for Photographic Education and the Popular Culture Association, Sell has presented research at conferences in Chicago, Portland and Washington, D.C. His research areas include memetics, media-centric imagery and the digital/analog aesthetic. His photography has been exhibited throughout the Pacific Northwest, as well as Los Angeles, New York and Tallinn, Estonia

Banner Bank of Pendleton underwrites the event each year, said executive direct Roberta Lavadour, providing funds for cash awards for both adults and teens. Their sustaining support makes it possible for artists to receive meaningful recognition for their creative work, she said.

In addition, while visiting the gallery, those in attendance will have an opportunity to cast votes for the Jacqueline Brown People's Choice Award. It will be presented after the final day of the exhibit. The $200 prize is provided by the Picken/ Brown family.

For more than 40 years, the Arts Council of Pendleton has invited artists from across region to exhibit their artwork for the community to enjoy.

Prior to the renovation of the old library building into the arts center, organizers used a variety of venues, including Blue Mountain Community Collete and the Pendleton Convention Center. Every other year, the exhibit focuses on photography submissions — alternat-ing with paintings and sculpture the other years.

The exhibit runs through Friday, June 29. Gallery hours are Tuesday through Fridays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturdays from noon to 4 p.m. Admission is free.
