

PEANUTS

BY CHARLES M. SCHULZ

FOR BETTER OR WORSE

BY LYNN JOHNSTON

B.C.

BY JOHNNY HART

PICKLES

BY BRIAN CRANE

BEETLE BAILEY

BY MORT WALKER

GARFIELD

BY JIM DAVIS

BLONDIE

BY DEAN YOUNG AND STAN DRAKE

DILBERT

BY SCOTT ADAMS

THE WIZARD OF ID

BY BRANT PARKER AND JOHNNY HART

LUANN

BY GREG EVANS

ZITS

BY JERRY SCOTT AND JIM BORGMAN

DEAR ABBY

Rescinded vacation invitation causes bad blood in family

JEANNE PHILLIPS Advice

Dear Abby: My son "Jeff" is wealthy and lives in another state with his wife and family. His wife has now moved her mother to where they live and she works for my son. Jeff and his family take vacations several times a year in the U.S. and out of it, and always include her mother or her father and his wife.

in "How are you today, young lady?" I find it condescending. Why is it necessary to make reference to my age? Obviously, they don't think I'm young at all. What would you say in these situations? — Irritated In San Diego

Two months ago, he invited his sister and niece to go with them. They were very excited, but a few days later he called them and said his wife wanted her mother to go, so the invitation was withdrawn.

Dear Irritated: You are asking a question I receive often. Older women not only resent being called "young lady," they also dislike being called "honey" and "sweetie" by someone who doesn't know them well. Because it bothers you, tell the person, "I know you're trying to be nice, but in the future, please use my name or call me 'ma'am.'" This is something you might also mention to the store manager, so he or she can remind the staff that not everyone appreciates the over-familiarity.

My son and his wife don't think they did anything wrong, but there have been bad feelings ever since, and they continue to take her family everywhere. How would you handle this? Would you keep silent or speak to them? — Not Invited In Oklahoma

Dear Not Invited: It appears your son's wife rules the roost. I don't blame your daughter for feeling hurt, because what your son did was insensitive and rude. The problem with keeping silent is that hurt feelings fester and grow. If it were me, I wouldn't fume in silence. Your daughter should talk to her brother about what happened, and point out how hurtful rescinding the invitation was to her and her daughter. Getting it off her chest may make her feel better.

Dear Abby: I'm a 69-year-old woman. I look my age because, unlike most of my friends, I don't color my hair. Sometimes when I'm shopping — such as in a grocery store — employees call me "young lady," as

Dear Abby: Recently, on an airline flight, the passenger next to me put her feet (with shoes on) onto the headrest in front of her. No one was in the seat. Since she had her headphones on, I tapped her on the shoulder and indicated that it was unsanitary to put one's feet where normally a passenger's head should be. I got a dirty look for my efforts, and the young woman made quite a scene. Should I have ignored the situation, or said something to the flight attendants? What do you recommend? — Unsanitary In The East

Dear Unsanitary: If you had quietly alerted the flight attendants and let them handle it, you would have spared yourself the unpleasantness you experienced. That's what I would recommend.

DAYS GONE BY

100 Years Ago From the East Oregonian June 1, 1918

William Giesie, former resident of Hermiston and now farming in Morrow county, went with a team and wagon over a 500 foot cliff last week and still lives to tell the tale. The accident occurred on the Wyland ranch on Rock creek, a week ago Friday. Mr. Wyland and Mr. Giesie were building fence and had driven to the edge of the cliff to get some wire. Near the cliff's edge something happened to the wagon and the horses becoming frightened, went over the cliff. Mr. Wyland was thrown from the wagon at the start and lay unconscious. The horses and Giesie went down 500 feet to the bottom of the cliff. When found Mr. Giesie was unconscious and terribly cut about the head. He did not regain consciousness for 24 hours. It is believed he will recover. The horses also came out alive.

lip Courteau, 39, were in the city jail in lieu of bail charged with larceny, and in addition Medley is charged with carrying a concealed weapon. City police officer Ron Williams arrested them at SE Court and 18th at 1:44 a.m. today, accusing them of stealing five gallons of gasoline from an unmarked city police car customarily driven by Police Chief Ernest Gallaher, and which was parked in front of his residence at 619 S.E. 3rd when the incident occurred.

50 Years Ago From the East Oregonian June 1, 1968

Stealing gasoline from a city police car is just about as daring as driving into the rear end of a state police automobile on the highway — either way, it doesn't pay. Today Doyle Clifford Medley, 22, and Richard Phil-

25 Years Ago From the East Oregonian June 1, 1993

A guard at Eastern Oregon Correctional Institution in Pendleton escaped serious injury Monday when he was struck by a weight-training bar wielded by an inmate. The guard, Louis Michael, 26, of Pendleton, was hit in the head, arms and leg by the bar. He was transported by Pendleton Ambulance to St. Anthony Hospital, where he was treated and released. Sharon Jackson, executive assistant to the superintendent at EOIC, said the suspect has been placed in segregation. His name is being withheld pending completion of an investigation by Oregon State Police, which has legal authority for crimes committed at the prison.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Today is the 152nd day of 2018. There are 213 days left in the year.

Today's Highlights in History:

On June 1, 1968, the cult British television series "The Prisoner," starring Patrick McGoohan as an ex-secret agent who finds himself trapped in a sinister, Orwellian village, had its American premiere on CBS. Author-lecturer Helen Keller, who earned a college degree despite being blind and deaf almost her entire life, died in Westport, Connecticut, at age 87.

In 1868, James Buchanan, the 15th president of the United States, died near Lancaster, Pennsylvania, at age 77.

In 1927, Lizzie Borden, accused but acquitted of her 1892 ax murders of her father, Andrew, and her step-mother, Abby, died in Fall River, Massachusetts, at age 66.

In 1958, Charles de Gaulle became premier of France, marking the beginning of the end of the Fourth Republic.

In 1977, the Soviet Union formally charged Jewish human rights activist Anatoly Shcharansky with treason.

On this date: In 1813, the mortally wounded commander of the USS Chesapeake, Capt. James Lawrence, gave the order, "Don't give up the ship" during a losing battle with the British frigate HMS Shannon in the War of 1812.

Actor-writer-director Peter Masterson is 84. Actor Morgan Freeman is 81. Actor Rene Auberjonois is 78. Opera singer Frederica von Stade is 73. Country musician Richard Comeaux (River Road) is 57. Actor-singer Jason Donovan is 50. Actress Teri Polo is 49. Basketball player-turned-coach Tony Bennett is 49. Actor Rick Gomez is 46. Singer Alanis Morissette is 44. Actress Sarah Wayne Callies is 41. TV personality Damien Fahey is 38. Actress-writer Amy Schumer is 37.

Thought for Today: "To be nobody-but-yourself — in a world which is doing its best, night and day, to make you everybody else — means to fight the hardest battle which any human being can fight; and never stop fighting." — E.E. Cummings, American poet, (1894-1962).

PHOEBE AND HER UNICORN

BY DANA SIMPSON

BIG NATE

BY LINCOLN PEIRCE

