

Auxiliary volunteers present check to Good Shepherd

Even though volunteers of the Good Shepherd Medical Center Auxiliary were being recognized during a June 4 awards luncheon, they still were reaching out to give back.

Nick Bejarano, director of marketing and communications, said the group presented a check for $22,000 to Bob Green, executive director of the Good Shepherd Community Health Foundation.

The money was raised through a variety of fundraisers throughout the fiscal year.

Bejarano said it will be used to purchase much-needed equipment at Good Shepherd.

For more about the hospital auxiliary, call the director of volunteer services at 541-667-3690.

Clearview sews up donation from quilters

The Krazy Horse Quilters recently donated proceeds from a raffle quilt to Clearview Disability Resource Center.

The quilters raised the money during the Pendleton Quilt Show, which was held in May. Linda Stevens of Pilot Rock was the winner of the quilt.

Krazy Horse members select a local charity each year to benefit from the sale of raffle tickets. Darrin Umbarger, founder and director of Clearview, recently accepted the $685 donation.

Just finishing up with its 17th annual show, plans are now underway for the 2019 event.

Caledonian Games scores grant funds

Organizers of Athena Caledonian Games are looking forward to gathering up friends and celebrating a great Scottish tradition during the second full weekend in July in Athena.

The Caledonian leaders consider 2018 a building year with new projects that are resulting from grants, said president Sue Friese. For a new look in Athena City Park, Caledonian will proudly fly event flags gifted from the Wildhorse Foundation. Visitors will be able to quickly identify where each event is located with teardrop-shaped flags. The colorful flags will be labeled Entertainment Center Stage, Clan Village, Celtic Harp and Storytelling, Piping Competition, and Athletic Competition.

In addition, Friese said the Athena Caledonian Games received a Umatilla County Community Development grant for a kiosk placed in Athena City Park. The kiosk can be used for community and cultural events, as well as Caledonian history and current events. Caledonian is pleased to have a permanent, yet personal representation in Athena, Friese said.

PAWS elects new board officers

New officers have been elected to the Pendleton Animal Welfare Shelter board of directors.

After serving as the board vice president, Jackie Carey has been elected president. Also, Melissa Nathan, a new addition to the board, was elected to the post of vice president. Robin Harris is remaining as treasurer and Ben DeCarlow was again elected to the position of secretary.

A nonprofit organization, the mission of PAWS is to promote and provide humane treatment of animals through education. It coordinates fostering, sheltering and the adoption of homeless animals. It also serves the community by reducing pet population through spay/neuter programs and maintains a commitment not to euthanize healthy, adoptable animals.

For more information, call 541-276-0181 or search Facebook.

Filipino culture lives on in Eastern Oregon

Members of the Eastern Oregon Philippine-American Community continue to embrace their Filipino culture, said Noemi Wiseman, the group's current president.

Organized several years ago, the group holds monthly get-togethers to keep in touch and celebrate the birthdays of members with abundant foods, Wiseman said. A recent gathering included a "bottle fight," where foods were on banana leaves.

It is a way of dining without using silverware, Wiseman explained.

In addition, EOPAC plans events and activities throughout the year, including monthly gatherings, an annual yard sale, a family picnic and a Christmas party. The group also participates in the Dress-Up Parade, which has resulted in winning several trophies.
