Black Forest Cake

Black Forest cake isn't named for the mountains directly, but for a cherry liquor that comes from that region.

In Germany, it must be used to be called a Black Forest cake, but it can be hard to find state-side. Here, the flavor usually comes from the use of the fruit itself in the recipe.

It's also been said that the cake, which is usually topped with bright red cherries, is named for a hat popular in the Black Forest region. The hat is topped with large, bright red pom-poms.

BLACK FOREST CAKE
(by Allrecipes)

2 1/8 cups flour

2 cups white sugar

3/4 unsweetened cocoa powder

1 1/2 tsp baking powder

3/4 tsp baking soda

3/4 tsp salt

3 eggs

1 cup milk

1/2 cup vegetable oil

1 Tbsp vanilla extract

Frosting:

40 oz. canned, pitted sour cherries

1 cup white sugar

1/4 cup cornstarch

1 tsp. vanilla

3 cups heavy whipping cream

1/2 cup confectioners' sugar

1. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour two 9-inch cake pans and cover bottoms with waxed paper.

2. In a bowl, combine flour, sugar, cocoa, baking powder and soda, and salt. Add the eggs, milk, oil, and tablespoon of vanilla and beat until well blended. Pour into pans.

3. Bake for 35 minutes or until a toothpick comes out clean. Cool layers on wire rack for 10 minutes before removing from the pan.

4. Drain the cherries, keeping 1/2 cup juice. Combine the juice, cherries, 1 cup sugar and cornstarch in a saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thick. Stir in vanilla and cool.

5. Combine the whipping cream and confectioners' sugar in a bowl and whip until stiff peaks form.

6. Cut each cake layer horizontally in half. Tear one half into crumbs and set side. Brush crumbs from remaining halves. Place one half on a cake plate. Spread with frosting and cherry topping, then add another layer and repeat. Frost the side of the cake and pat crumbs onto the sides. Frost the top of the cake and top with remaining cherry topping.
