Safe Trick-or-Treating

Trick-or-treating remains a favorite tradition of American children, and it can be a fun way for kids to spend Halloween.

While traipsing around your neighborhood in the dark wearing costumes comes with a few more risks than a regular day, there's no reason it can't be a safe and sugar-filled evening if you take a few extra precautions.

Safe Kids Worldwide and the American Red Cross had tips for children and adults to ensure trick-or-treating is fun, fruitful and safe for everyone.

Don't go trick-or-treating alone. Safe Kids recommends children younger than 12 years old should always go with an adult; older children can go with other kids. Stay in groups and remain in familiar areas.

OUT AND ABOUT

Stay on sidewalks and in lighted areas. Pay attention to traffic; Halloween puts a lot of pedestrians on the road, often with children who aren't paying attention, and drivers shuttling trick-or-treaters around or going to parties. Pay attention to cars backing out of driveways, and keep a close watch on kids so they don't dart into the street. Don't cut across yards or go through alleys, and don't cross the street between parked cars.

Make sure costumes allow for clear vision. Masks should have large enough eyeholes that kids can see clearly. Face paint and makeup are better options than masks.

Decorate costumes and candy bags with reflective tape or stickers. This will make it easier for them to show up in a car's headlights. Have your children carry glow sticks or flashlights to be more visible. When possible, have children wear light-colored costumes.

Don't go inside a stranger's house for candy or treats.

AT HOME

Are you staying home to give out candy to trick-or-treaters? Follow these tips for safety.

Make sure pets are taken care of. If your dog is likely to get stressed out with the frequent doorbell ringing and parade of children, keep it in a back room to help it stay calm and not endanger children.

Keep your porch and yard well-lit. Clear the porch of obstacles trick-or-treaters could trip over.

Be extra cautious while driving. Go slowly, watch for children, pay attention and if you're going to be drinking at a Halloween party, call a cab or get a ride.
