Survivors gather at Pearl Harbor for attack remembrance

Thousands of men lost in the Japanese attack 77 years ago

By AUDREY MCAVOY
Associated Press

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (AP) — About 20 survivors gathered at Pearl Harbor on Friday to pay tribute to the thousands of men lost in the Japanese attack 77 years ago. They joined dignitaries, active duty troops and members of the public in observing a moment of silence at 7:55 a.m., the time the bombing began on Dec. 7, 1941. John Mathrusse was an 18-year-old seaman second class walking out of the chow hall on Ford Island to see a friend on the USS West Virginia when the bombing began. “The guys were getting hurt, bombs and shells going off in the water. I helped the ones that couldn’t swim, who were too badly injured or whatever and helped them to shore,” said Mathrusse, now 95. Mathrusse, who traveled to Hawaii for the event from Mountain View, California, remembers carrying injured people to the mess hall and setting them on mattresses grabbed from the barracks above. Robert Fernandez, who was assigned to the USS Curtiss, recalls being petrified.

“I was kind of nervous too. I was scared. I was 17. I went to go see the world. What did I get into? A war,” he said. The 94-year-old from Stockton, California, returns for the annual remembrance each year because he’s now alone after his wife died four years ago. Adm. Phil Davidson, commander of the U.S. Indo-Pacific Command, said the nation can never forget the heavy price paid on that day. He cited 21 vessels damaged or sunk, 170 planes destroyed, more than 2,400 people dead, including servicemen and civilians. “Despite these losses, it did not break the American spirit. In fact, it charged it,” he said in a keynote address. The survivors are declining in number as they push well into their 90s, and are increasingly treated as celebrities. They say people ask for their autographs and request to take photos and selfies with them. “I am given a lot of attention and honor. I shake hands continuously,” said Tom Berg, who lives in Port Townsend, Washington. Berg, who is 96, served on the USS Tennessee. This year, no survivor from the USS Arizona attended the ceremony as none of the men were able to make the trip to Hawaii. The Arizona sank after two bombs hit the ship, triggering tremendous explosions.

The family of

We are very grateful to Kim Arbogast, Skip and Sherry Walchli, The Board of Realtors, and all those connected with the real estate industry for hosting the gathering and luncheon following the memorial service which was enjoyed by all.

The greatest gift you can give someone is your time & attention.
