ARRESTS, CITATIONS

Friday

Oregon State Police arrested Cary Dean Zelmer, 55, of Pendleton, for driving under the influence of intoxicants (controlled substances). During the evening traffic stop at Southwest First Street and Dorion Avenue, Pendleton, police also determined Zelmer was driving a stolen pickup.

Hermiston police arrested Clifford Duane Gross, 55, of Pendleton, for DUII (alcohol) and open container.

An Oregon State Police trooper stopped the pickup near milepost 198 and verified the driver, Matt King, 50, of McMinnville, indeed had flashing red lights on the front of the vehicle. The trooper cited King for speeding — going 85 mph in a 70 zone — and prohibited lighting.

Sunday

Hermiston police arrested Emmet Ray Evans, 39, for DUII (alcohol).

Monday

The Umatilla County Sheriff's Office arrested Victor Manuel Calderon, 49, of Hermiston, for hit-and-run causing an injury.

Trump seeks quick Supreme Court ruling on citizenship question

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Trump administration says it will appeal directly to the Supreme Court to be allowed to include a citizenship question on the 2020 census, bypassing the court of appeals and seeking a final ruling by the end of June. Solicitor General Noel Francisco says in court papers filed Tuesday that the rare and fast turnaround is necessary if census questionnaires are to be printed in time.

A week ago, a federal judge blocked the administration from asking about citizenship on the upcoming census.

It's been 30 years since the court took on an issue without waiting for a federal appeals court to weigh in. Francisco says the justices should hear arguments in April or a special session in May.

The citizenship question is the third time since October that Francisco is seeking the court's intervention without an appellate ruling. The other two are Obama-era programs to shield young immigrants from deportation and allow transgender people to serve in the military. The Supreme Court hasn't acted on the immigration case, and an appellate court has since ruled on the issue. The justices on Tuesday denied early review of the transgender service policy, but allowed Pentagon restrictions that had been blocked by lower courts to take effect while the appeals process unfolds.

Commerce Secretary Wilbur Ross announced in March 2018 that the 2020 census would be the first since 1950 to include a citizenship question. The question would help the government enforce the 1965 Voting Rights Act that is intended to assure access to the ballot.

But 18 states, the District of Columbia, 15 big cities or counties, and immigrants' rights groups sued the Commerce Department, which designs the census, and claimed it failed to properly analyze the effect that the question would have on households with immigrants. The challengers said the Trump administration added the question to discourage immigrants from participating, potentially leading to a population undercount.
