Party Proof your Home

Accidents happen at parties. Drinks can be spilled and valuable items risk being bumped from shelves. The first step to party proofing is maximizing your space. Rearrange furniture and create clear walkways around and through your party area. Keep reading for more hints on hosting a successful party.

PROTECT YOUR CARPET

Here's how to clean common some common party spills.

Red wine: Blot the spot from the outside in; don't rub. Keep blotting with cold water until the wine is gone or diluted. Pour salt over the spot while it's still wet and let the salt absorb the remaining wine.

Barbecue sauce: Mix a 1:1 ratio of warm water and dish-washing liquid. Blot the spot until it disappears. If it sets, mix a tablespoon of ammonia with a half cup of warm water and sponge it over the stain. Blot until it disappears and rinse with cold water. Melted cheese: Use the dull edge of a knife to pull as much cheese as you can out of the carpet fibers. Mix two cups of warm water with two tablespoons dishwashing detergent. Use a soft brush or sponge to dab solution, working from the outside in. Blot cheese away with a paper towel until it's all gone. Rinse with cold water and blot dry.

TABLECLOTHS

Your tabletops will need to be protected from guests with drinks and crumbs. Avoid visitors damaging your furniture with dings or drink rings by covering them with disposable tablecloths.

They also make cleanup a breeze. Ensure only disposable items remain on the table, roll the cloth up and find the trash can.

PREPARE YOUR PETS
 It's no surprise that Super Bowl Sunday can be the loudest day of the year. People get wrapped up in the game and aren't afraid to show their enthusiasm or disdain throughout. If you have a pet who is timid or nervous of loud noises, consider keeping them in an area of your home where people won't be around. Treat them with their favorite foods and remember to check on them during the night.
