Meatless Wednesday: Flavortown Market goes to the greens and beans

By Andrew Warren
 TV Media

In the first round of the competition, host Guy Fieri gives the competing chefs a list of ingredients that their dishes must feature. Then, in the second round, the chef spins a wheel that randomly gives each of them a meat dish that they must make vegetarian. Finally, Guy gets tricky in the final round and takes away the remaining competitors' shopping carts before sending them out to shop for the ingredients needed to make their guilty pleasure dishes.

"Guy's Grocery Games" is similar to other cooking competition shows, with a chef getting the axe after each round once the judges have had a chance to taste and evaluate all of the dishes. The contest is held inside of a supermarket, and the competitors are required to "shop" for their own ingredients from the store's shelves, and all sorts of twists tie into the unique milieu.

The judges that Guy has brought in to taste this week's meatless meals are a wife's who of Food Network's celebrity chefs, there's a pair of "Food Network Star" winners in Danarri Phillip ("Southern at Heart") and Aarti Sequeira ("Aarti Party"), along with frequent judge and "Top Chef: All-Stars" winner Richard Blais.

Veggies don't have to be boring, and with these three discerning judges ready to taste everything on the plate, the contestants in this week's "Guy's Grocery Games" have to pack as much punch into their dishes as they can.
