SATURDAY, 12:30-2:30 PM

August 3 (one session)

The Pendleton Center for the Arts and CTUIR Business Development Services are teaming up to present a FREE session for working artists who want to take the presentation of their work to the next level. If you create items for sale in consignment shops, craft galleries, festivals, or online marketplaces, defining your brand and telling the story with attractive packaging is a must. We'll spend the day helping you evaluate your needs and you'll leave with a clear idea of how to create hang tags and other items to show off your work. Just in time for Round Up and holiday season!

FREE but registration required at least a week ahead.

HAPPY HOUR CLASS: ASSEMBLAGE

with Chantell Reid

SATURDAY, 6:00 – 8:00 PM

July 20 (one session)

An assemblage is a work of art made by grouping together found or unrelated objects. We'll start with a unique piece of treated driftwood found along the Umatilla River, then add interesting objects until the perfect composition emerges. Students will learn how to create yarn palms, tassels, macramé knots, and more. You are also welcomed to bring your own objects- antlers, trim, and feathers can be fun to experiment with. FREE – all supplies provided.
