Keeping your RV Clean

Long road trips can get messy. With a consistent, comprehensive cleaning routine, you can keep your RV looking like new as you head out on the highway.

That way you can focus on what's really important: Spending quality time with your friends and family members on your travels.

Too busy to maintain a clean RV? Scheduled packed with too many family activities and stops along your road trip? Here are three simple ways to keep up on RV cleanliness.

CLEANING ROUTINE
Establish a regular routine to help your RV stay in tip-top shape. Treat your RV like your home, with consistent dusting and vacuuming while you're on the road. Equip your RV with an onboard vacuum system to make this part of cleaning a breeze.

Clean your bathroom a couple times per week, especially while you're on the road.

If traveling with your friends or family, be sure to enlist their help in your cleaning duties. Build a chore chart for younger travelers to teach them the importance of cleaning and hard work. Items on the chore chart can be taking out the trash, sweeping the floors and cleaning out the refrigerator.

DEEP CLEAN
A regular routine of dusting and vacuuming is great, but don't forget to deep clean every once in a while. Bust out the cleaning sprays and give your surfaces some elbow grease.

Find sprays with no harsh chemicals and remember to open your windows to let ambient air circulate throughout your cabin space.

Sanitize the bathroom and kitchen areas, where germs are most likely to be present.

Wipe down windows and wash the exterior of the RV when you have time.

LOCAL DETAILERS

Your best friend in between traveling will be your local detailer. Ask your dealer if they offer detailing services or if they recommend a company in your area. Detailers can get your RV looking like new again in just a couple of hours.

Establish a relationship with a local detailer who does quality work and you'll always have a go-to place for RV detailing and cleaning services, saving you valuable time and effort.
