DEAR ABBY

Maintaining friend's website becomes unwelcome burden

Dear Abby: Around 12 years ago, I helped out an old friend I'll call Patty by creating an author website for her...

each other. He is also a narcissist. Innocent people have been victimized by all of this. Now he is moving on to the elderly neighbors and lying to them about family members...

England

Dear Desperate: Because your brother-in-law is now spreading misinformation among the elderly neighbors, explain to them that he has a "personality disorder" and a problem with the truth...

Dear Abby: I have depression and anxiety problems. My dad sometimes forgets that I have it. I tried to kill myself a couple of times. I asked him if I can have a service dog for my mental health problems...

Dear Going Insane: I cannot fathom how the parent of a child who has attempted to commit suicide would "forget" it. I will assume that you are under the care of a mental health professional for your depression and anxiety...

Over time, her requests for revisions and updates have increased to the point that I dread receiving them. I'm very busy with a business I own, and I really don't want to do this for her anymore.

The problem is, I created the website using an obscure program she has no idea how to use (she's tech-unsavvy to begin with), so if I stop, I would be leaving her high and dry...

I'm dying to let this go, but I think she'll be crushed, and I hate to hurt her. Any advice? — Overworked Friend

Dear Overworked: Explain to your friend that you have a business to run and you will no longer be able to give her the free services you have been. Then, if you want to keep the friendship, rebuild her a website on a platform that will be easier for her — or someone else — to manage in the future.

Dear Abby: My brother-in-law has always been a bully and a chronic liar. It has torn our family apart. He'll tell one family member one thing, and the other another story for the purpose of getting them mad at

Charged with blackmail, Carrie Hill, 34, of Portland was arrested Wednesday afternoon by Inspectors Snow and Tackaberry on a warrant sworn out by A.L. Demaris of Milton. Mr. Demaris alleges that he was visiting Miss Hall when an unknown man entered the room and, drawing a gun on him, threatened to kill him...

Pendleton city police were searching today for a con artist, who Wednesday obtained $3,800 from a Pendleton woman. Similar situations have occurred within the last few days at Ogden, Utah, Pocatello and Boise, Idaho. The victim has always been a woman. The suspect poses as a bank official and asks the subject to withdraw her money. He tells her a bank employe is under investigation and offers a reward if she will withdraw her money so he can check the employe. He asks her to turn the money over to his "auditor." Within the last few days in similar situations women have been conned out of $2,800 at Pocatello and $3,100 at Boise.

Jodi Severe's dramatic stretch run in the 300-meter low hurdles capped the best day ever for the Pendleton Bucks at the state high school Class 4A track and field championships in Eugene Saturday. To the delight of Pendleton hurdles coach Eldon Lilly, the rest of the Bucks coaches and her teammates, Severe blasted from sixth place to third place in the final 120 meters of the 300 hurdles. She finished in a dead heat with second-place Wanjeria Washington of Benson in an electronically timed 46.35 seconds.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On May 30, 1911, the first Indy 500 took place at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway; the winner was Ray Harroun, who drove a Marmon Wasp for more than 6½ hours at an average speed of 74.6 mph and collected a prize of $10,000.

In 1381, the Peasants' Revolt against economic injustice erupted in England during the reign of King Richard II; the king and his men, initially caught off-guard, were able to crush the rebellion several weeks later.

In 1431, Joan of Arc, condemned as a heretic, was burned at the stake in Rouen, France.

In 1883, 12 people were trampled to death in a stampede sparked by a rumor that the recently opened Brooklyn Bridge was in danger of collapsing.

In 1935, Babe Ruth played in his last major league baseball game for the Boston Braves, leaving after the first inning of the first game of a double-header against the Philadelphia Phillies, who won both games (Ruth announced his retirement three days later).

In 1937, ten people were killed when police fired on steelworkers demonstrating near the Republic Steel plant in South Chicago.

In 1958, unidentified American service members killed in World War II and the Korean War were interred in the Tomb of the Unknowns at Arlington National Cemetery.

In 1989, student protesters in Beijing erected a "Goddess of Democracy" statue in Tiananmen Square (the statue was destroyed in the Chinese government's crackdown).

In 2008, diplomats from 111 nations meeting in Dublin, Ireland, formally adopted a landmark treaty banning cluster bombs.

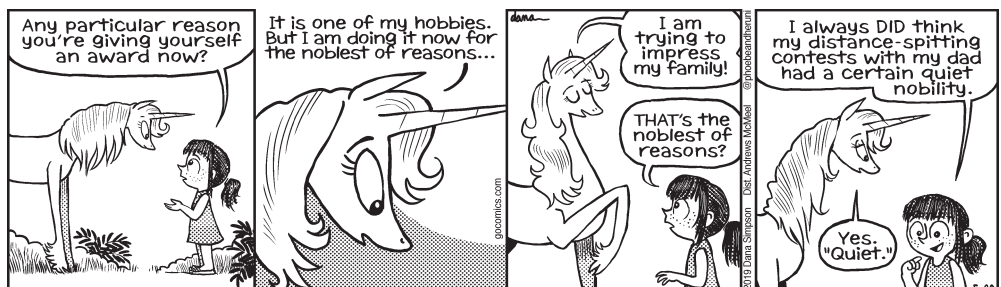

(The United States and other leading cluster bomb makers — Russia, China, Israel, India and Pakistan — boycotted the talks.)
