

MLB attendance down another 1.4% from last season

NEW YORK — The Tampa Bay Rays and Miami Marlins drew 12,653 fans Wednesday — combined. Baltimore, Cincinnati, Minnesota and Tampa Bay set stadium lows this year. Kansas City had its smallest home crowd since 2011, and Toronto and San Francisco since 2010. The Marlins' average attendance is less than Triple-A Las Vegas.

Major League Baseball's overall average of 26,854 through Wednesday is 1.4% below the similar point last season, which wound up below 30,000 for the first time since 2003. Baseball Commissioner

Rob Manfred attributes this year's drop to fewer season tickets but emphasizes day-of-game sales are up 6%. "Given the explosion of entertainment alternatives and the growth of the secondary market, it is not surprising that season ticket sales can be challenging," he said. Nineteen of the 30 teams have seen their average fall from a similar point last year, with the largest drops in Toronto (6,963), San Francisco (6,463), Baltimore (3,839) and Detroit (3,686).

Large rises have taken place for Philadelphia (10,383), Oakland (4,027), San Diego (3,465) and the Chicago White Sox (2,311). The Phillies signed Bryce Harper and the Padres added Manny Machado.

"A lot of it comes down to competition. Fans want to know their teams are doing everything they can to compete for a championship every year," union leader Tony Clark said. "I see every empty seat as a missed opportunity. Experiencing a game and seeing players perform in person creates a bond with baseball; our industry needs to find ways to convert those empty seats into lifelong fans."

MLB's average peaked at 32,785 in 2007 — the last year before the Great Recession and the next-to-last season before the New York Yankees and Mets moved to smaller stadiums. The average was at 30,517 in 2015 before sliding for three straight years, and last season's final figure of 28,830 marked a 4% drop, the overall number hurt by cold and wet weather early in the season.

Manfred points to other metrics that please MLB: Games top prime-time cable ratings in 24 of 25 markets and MLB.tv streaming is up 8.5%. He views increases for the Phillies, Padres, Athletics and White Sox tied to team performance.

Florida remains a problem on both coasts.

Despite a sparkling, eight-season-old ballpark with a retractable roof, Miami is averaging 9,554 — below the 9,582 average for Triple-A Las Vegas in its first season at a new 10,000-capacity stadium.

Tampa Bay plays in one of the most outmoded facilities in the major leagues and drew 5,786 against the Blue Jays on Tuesday, the smallest home crowd for the Rays, who started play at Tropicana Field in 1998.

STATEMENT OF CHANGES IN ACTIVITIES and SOURCES OF FINANCING **

The budget for 2019-20 school year is based on $9.0 billion K-12 state funding for the biennium and is a status quo budget from 2018-19. The budget reflects an increase of 1.36 FTE in the general fund. The increased FTE is to provide a Dean of Students at our larger elementary schools as an additional support and the high school to support students ages 16-21 with disabilities with employment or career related postsecondary education or training. The budget also reflects an increase of 3.14 FTE in the special revenue funds due to the receipt of the High School Success Funds and a Youth Transition Grant. During the 2018-19 school year the District QZAB loan was paid in full and the Capital Funds budget was fully expended, these changes are reflected in the document as well.
