United States' Carli Lloyd, center, celebrates with Lindsey Horan and Tierna Davidson, right, after scoring the opening goal during the Women's World Cup Group F soccer match between the United States and Chile at the Parc des Princes in Paris on Sunday.

Lloyd's tiny golf clap delivers big message from U.S. women

By RONALD BLUM Associated Press

PARIS — Carli Lloyd had just scored on an 18-yard volley to put the United States ahead 11 minutes in against Chile. After leaping, pumping a fist and hugging teammate Lindsey Horan, she raised both hands chin high and made four tiny pitter-patter claps, the type seen more frequently at Pebble Beach than Parc des Princes.

A message? You bet.

Easy wins and lots of goals are par for the course when it comes to the U.S. women's soccer team.

"I can't take credit for it. I'm not sure if Lindsey is taking credit for it," Lloyd said after a 3-0 victory Sunday night advanced the U.S. to the round of 16. "She had told me if we score, that's what we're going to do so I just went along with it after I did my little celebration But it was fun. I think it made a statement on the sideline there. It was cool." A record-setting 13-0 rout of Thailand that opened the tournament for the Americans sparked a debate back home. Celebration had not been discussed this much since Kool & the Gang. Some cried poor sportsmanship. Others argued players shouldn't be asked to let up on soccer's biggest stage.

All the harrumphing was heard across the Atlantic. "I guess we could have just passed it around the back for a million times, but that's boring. That's disrespectful to everyone: fans, ourselves" said 33-year-old Megan Rapinoe, the pink-haired veteran famous for running to a corner flag and screaming "Born in the USA" into a television microphone after a goal against Colombia in the 2011 World Cup.

'The only thing you ask of an athlete really is to put it all out there and do the best vou can. It's not in our DNA ever."

weekend-long Walla Walla Tourney.

Pendleton pitcher Aiden Gunter tallied nine strikeouts and didn't give up a single hit over his four innings of work.

The Diamondjaxx scored five runs in the bottom of the third inning, and six more in the fourth to keep the game well in their control. Hayden Hodson got things going in the third when he singled on a fly ball to left field, allowing Jim Smith to score. Andrew Demianew slammed a double into center field for two more RBIs. Karson Lani posted a two-RBI double of his own the following inning.

Demianew went 2-for-3 at the plate with a run scored and four RBIs. Collin Primus' 3-for-4 performance included a pair of RBIs.

Moses Lake would only strike out one Diamondjaxx batter over the entire game, sending two pitchers to the mound in an attempt to hold off Pendleton.

And on Saturday, the Diamondjaxx withstood a Pasco Riverdogs rally for another Walla Walla Tourney victory, turning them down 9-7.

Although he did not score a run of his own, Jack Monkman drove in four RBIs to keep Pendleton ahead. The Diamondjaxx scored four runs in the bottom of the fifth, which gave them enough distance to survive a three-run Pasco comeback two innings later.

But a 12-run fourth inning forced the Diamondjaxx to end the weekend in defeat when Walla Walla turned them down 16-3 on Sunday.

Jacob Devereaux went 3 1/3 innings on the mound and gave up 10 runs and five hits to Walla Walla.

Racing: Young legend

17.6-second time for his final lap — just 0.3 seconds behind his season's best time, which earned him third place in a Legends race just two weeks ago.

"Garrett's great because he has a lot of go-cart experience," Walden said. "He's wellschooled in the craft."

A recent graduate of Carmichael Richland's Middle School, Poynor knows he's younger than the typical Legends driver, but he doesn't let that distract him.

"It's not intimidating," he said. "With as well as I'm driving, I think they're the ones who are going to be intimidated."

His father shares his confidence. "There's a lot of people excited about (Garrett)," John Poynor said. "Even the Legends drivers. They all like him. He's a clean driver."

Saturday night also consisted of races between cars categorized by their size, weight, and other specs, including Bandeleros, Hornets, Super Mini Stock, Mini Stock, Bombers, Roadhogs, Street Stocks, and Late Models.

The Hermiston Raceway will be back in action on Saturday, June 29 for another Hometown Heroes event. The night will be capped off with a pre-Fourth of July fireworks celebration.

Gates open at 4:30 p.m. Main events commence at 6 p.m.

"It's addicting. It's entertaining," Walden said. "People know they're going to see a good show."
