Texas: Garton joins Weatherford fall ball in August coaches. Once her education is complete, Garton said she plans to return to the Pendleton area to teach.

A complete package

Garton brings a wealth of experience and talent to Weatherford.

She was part of the Bucks 5A state championship team her junior year, and was a first-team Intermountain Conference selection this season

She hit .459 with 39 hits, seven doubles, eight home runs and 32 RBIs. She also scored 31 runs and had 10 fielding errors for the Bucks (17-10), who made a return trip to the state playoffs.

Pendleton played in the tough IMC along with topranked Ridgeview and Hood River Valley. The Bucks earned the third seed to state, where they lost in the quarterfinals to West Albany 9-3.

"Our league was really tough with Ridgeview coming in," Garton said. "West Albany caught us by surprise. It was sad. We wanted to go back (to the championship game). Sometimes it isn't your year. I'm glad we did what we did last year, it makes it not quite so bitter."

sure where she falls in the Coyotes' plans.

"I have played every position, but they are looking for shortstops and second basemen," Garton said. "I'm most comfortable in the middle infield."

Baseball: Pendleton heads to Baker City this weekend

Pendleton ended the game with 14 hits and only two errors. Meanwhile, the Cubs totaled seven mistakes.

Fell, Tyler Browning, and Cooper Roberts each put up two runs.

"We had a ton of great at-bats and some good Sheley fielding," "From what I saw, Idaho is a pretty coachable team. They're aggressive when it comes to base running."

The Cubs kept things closer in game two.

They were the first to score when Sonny Altamirano drove a run in on a double in the top of the first. Sheley evened things out one inning later with another double that sent Colton Henderson home.

Pendleton stayed locked in a 1-1 tie with the 16U Idaho team for the following two innings.

'They come from a lot of different high schools in the Boise area," Zander said. "They like to play up."

Sheley led off the top of the fifth with his third and final double. Browning drove him in two at-bats later, and scored on Kyle Field's sacrifice fly to center field to cap off the threerun inning.

It was enough to keep Pendleton in control for good.

"It's a team we should beat every time we play them," Zander said. "I'm glad we did. It's always nice when the kids do what they should. There are no extra kudos here."

Henderson benched four Idaho batters over the first five innings of game two, allowing just one run. Sheley threw two innings of relief, and tallied two more strikeouts. He also went 2-for-3, scoring a run and an RBI.

Starting on Friday, Hodgen Distributing (6-6-1) is on the road to Baker City for a weekendlong tournament.

NBA: Pelicans primed to draft Zion

The trade — which also sent a total of three firstround picks to the Pelicans — won't become official until after the new NBA league year begins July 6. But when the Lakers pick fourth overall, they will effectively select for the Pelicans and eventually will send that player to New Orleans — unless that pick is moved in a subsequent trade on behalf of the Pelicans by draft night. And while deciding whether to select Williamson isn't bound to cause any mental anguish or second guesses, deciding who to pick fourth overall could be a much tougher call. Gentry noted that while most drafts have just a few elite prospects, there often are future stars mined from mid- to late-firstround picks - never mind a second top-five choice Orleans has like New acquired. "There is the high end, front end of the draft, but there's going to be a guy that's drafted 14 to 25 that's going to be a game changer also," Gentry said. "It's happened almost every year and that's where Steve Nash and Kobe Bryant and Giannis (Antetokounmpo) and those guys were all drafted in that area right there. So, somewhere along the line, there's going to be some surprise guys that'll step up that's going to become really good basketball players."

A handful of prospects stand out as possible fourth overall picks, and the position they play could be a factor.

The Davis trade brought New Orleans highly regarded small forward Brandon Ingram, point guard Lonzo Ball and shooting guard Josh Hart. Ball and Ingram would be presumed starters alongside veteran guard Jrue Holiday and Williamson at power forward. The only true center on the roster is Jahlil Okafor. Forward Julius Randle also can play center, but is essentially a free agent with a player option to return for next season. Christian Wood, a 6-10 forward who thrived in his short, late-season stint with the Pelicans, also could play center.

Texas' Jaxson Hayes (6-11, 220) is widely seen as the top center in the draft, but not necessarily a top-five talent, so free agency might be the more practical route for the Pelicans to pursue an upgrade there.

Three players widely projected among picks Nos. 4-6 are Vanderbilt point guard Darius Garland (6-2, 175), Texas Tech shooting guard Jarrett Culver (6-7, 194), and Virginia wing player De'Andre Hunter (6-7, 225). While none of them would be expected to start immediately, each could emerge as an increasingly prominent player in the rotation as the season wears on. And the ability to bring a reliable scorer, playmaker or defender off the bench could make all the difference if the Pelicans find themselves making a playoff push next March.

Kerr has 4 goals and Australia beats Jamaica 4-1

Associated Press

Sam Kerr scored four goals, one shy of the World Cup record and the most by an Australian, in a 4-1 victory over Jamaica on Tuesday night at Grenoble, France, that advanced the Matildas into the knockout rounds Kerr tied American Alex

Morgan for the tournament lead with five goals. "I actually wanted more after that, being my selfish self," Kerr said. Australia advanced to the round of 16 for the fourth consecutive tournament following three straight quarterfinal eliminations. The Matildas finished second in Group C and will face Norway in Nice on Saturday on the first day of the round of 16. Kerr scored on a header off Emily Gielnik's cross in the 11th minute, doubled the lead with another header in the 42nd and completed the hat trick in the 69th. She scored again in the 83rd minute to give her 36 goals in 80 international appearances. Australia had stumbled at the start of the tournament with a loss to Italy but rebounded with a comefrom-behind victory over Brazil. Lisa De Vanna made her 150th international appearance, one shy of the Australian record set by Cheryl Salisbury. Jamaica got its first World Cup goal when Havana Solaun scored in the 49th. The first Caribbean nation to make the World Cup, Jamaica lost all three matches and was outscored 12-1. But the Reggae Girlz won hearts in France with their underdog story: Disbanded more than a decade ago, the team was revived in 2014 by Bob Marley's daughter Cedella.

"It doesn't matter what the score is, we just kept playing and believing," Reggae Girlz coach Hue Menzies said.
