

An unidentified victim is loaded onto a backboard at the scene of a deadly two-vehicle collision on North Cayuse Road on the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation on May 30, 2012, northeast of Pendleton.

An adult osprey flies up with a fish in its talons to feed its mate and two juveniles in their nest overlooking the Umatilla River on Wednesday, July 6, 2016, in Pendleton.

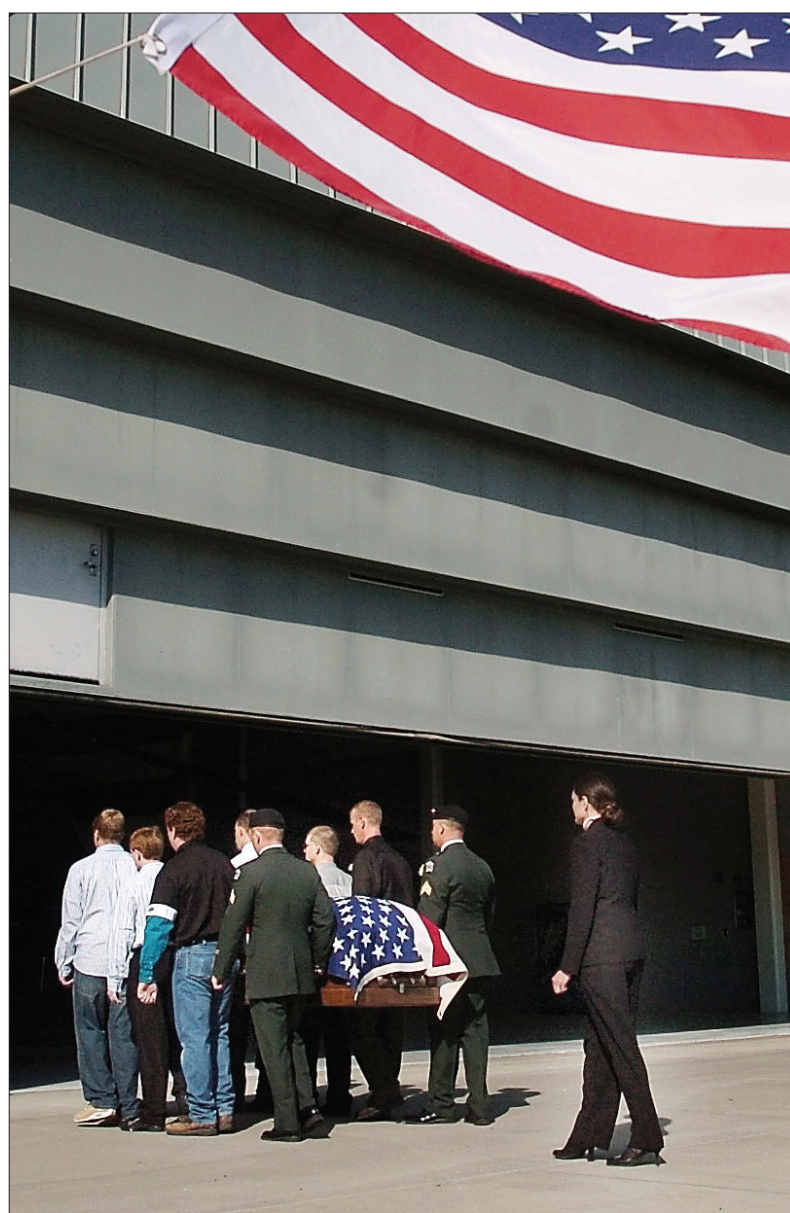

Noel Shannon, 23, watches as her mother, Christa Shannon, places a medicated bandage over the stitches on her left knee while changing her dressings on July 25, 2014, at their home outside of Milton-Freewater. Shannon had to have her left leg amputated below the knee after an automobile crash on July 5, 2014, left her leg mangled with little hope of full recovery.

CAREER IN THE REAR VIEW

EO photographer E.J. Harris says farewell after a lengthy career in Eastern Oregon

Staff photos by E.J. Harris

Pallbearers carry the casket of Staff Sgt. Tane Baum into the Army Aviation Support Facility, Oct. 6, 2005, during a memorial service in Pendleton.

Erik Richards, 9, makes the most of his situation as he jumps on a trampoline in front of the burned-out remains of his family's mobile home Wednesday, Jan. 10, 2007, on Despain Gulch Road Northwest of Pendleton. The mobile home burned down in an early-morning fire that completely consumed the structure.

Styling practice heads sit on top of student lockers on Monday, Aug. 2, 2011, at the Pendleton College of Hair Design.

A ridgeline is reflected in the waters of Lake Abert on June 20, 2016, off Highway 395 south of Burns.