WALLA WALLA — Crow's Shadow Institute of the Arts is gearing up for a new and improved version of its popular Monothon fundraising event.

After a four-year hiatus, organizers are excited to introduce the Monothon 2019 and the Crow's Shadow Gala & Art Auction. Monothon 2019 features a week of monotype printmaking with invited artists coming from across the Pacific Northwest to make prints in the Crow's Shadow studio in Mission. The week will crescendo with a gala celebration, including an art auction of the resulting prints.

The Gala & Art Auction event is Saturday, July 27 from 6-9 p.m. at Foundry Vineyards, 1111 Abadie St., Walla Walla. Tickets are $50 per person.

Vanessa Enos pulls a monotype print off the press during the 2015 Monothon at the Crow's Shadow Institute of the Arts. Enos is among the artists returning for Monothon 2019.

"This event will be an extraordinary evening of art, wine, and food, all in support of Crow's Shadow's ongoing programming and projects," said Nika Blasser of Crow's Shadow. "It will be a fancy event for us — the Foundry Vineyards gallery is a very beautiful contemporary space."

Participating Monothon printmaking artists

include James Lavadour (Pendleton), Keiko Hara (Walla Walla), Joe Feddersen (Omak), Samantha Wall (Portland), Kaila Farrell-Smith (Modoc Point), Kevin Haas (Pullman), Brenda Mallory (Portland), Victor Maldonado (Portland), Fox Spears (Seattle), Yoshihiro Kitai (Portland), Kirsten Furlong (Boise), Vanessa Enos (Beaverton) and others. Each artist will spend a day alongside four other artists in the Crow's Shadow print studio. Crow's Shadow master printer Judith Baumann will provide assistance.

The artists will work on a small series of monotype prints in order to donate at least two prints to Crow's Shadow for the fundraising auction. In addition, they will be able to keep some of their own work from the day, Blasser said.

A monotype is a completely unique print made from ink applied to an acrylic plate and run through the press. Each artist will have at least one print featured in the July 27 Gala Art Auction event, and one print on an online auction that will run from Aug. 1-9.

Living history performer to portray pioneer ancestor

East Oregonian

WALLA WALLA — The life of a wagon master and prospector is featured during a living history presentation at Fort Walla Walla Museum.

William Rockfellow, who operated the Rockfellow & Co. Pony Express, will be portrayed by his great-grandson Dick Phillips. The presentation is Sunday at 2 p.m. in the museum's Pioneer Village. While working as a prospector, Rockfellow, his brother, Albert, and three Jackson County friends discovered the famous Rockfellow ledge of gold, now known as the Virtue Mine. They set up a stamp mill to extract the ore on Powder River, and eventually Baker City grew up around it.

Rockfellow's wife operated a boarding house in Walla Walla. His daughter, Alice, married Harvey Meacham, who owned the Meacham toll road that ran between Idaho and Oregon, and a hotel near the summit of the Blue Mountains between La Grande
