WINE GUIDE | TRAVEL

Take a Wine Trip

Grab some friends or your other half and hit the road for a fun journey through your favorite vines and vintages. Keep reading for some tips on how to plan and take the perfect wine trip.

PICK YOUR POISONS

Decide what kinds of wines you like and what kinds you want to learn about to decide where you want to go. This may mean doing some sampling at home. Find a local liquor store with a knowledgeable wine staff to help point you toward some varietals that you may not have tried before.

PICK YOUR WINERIES

When you're planning your itinerary, mix up new and old wineries and include several alternates. Consider peak times (call if you need to) and leave plenty of time for travel, touring and browsing gift shops. An average day should have three to five stops, but if you're going to a large winery or one you're particularly excited about, leave more time.

HAVE A DESIGNATED DRIVER

If you're traveling to an area where wines are a big industry, there may be services to do this for you. If not, pick a designated driver for either the whole trip or one for each day.

BRING AN EMPTY BOX

You're sure to come across some bottles you just can't live without. Make sure to bring a box with you to carry off your new goodies and have a plan for getting all those bottles safely home. Consider mailing them or shipping them home rather than trying to fly with them.

THINK OUTSIDE THE BOTTLE

If you want to do more than just tasting, consider a trip like a wine hike, wine cruise or another unique trip. You can also add a wine festival to your itinerary. Check local community calendars and event listings.

KEEP YOUR BUDGET IN MIND

Factor in flights, cars, winery fees, shipping costs for those bottles you have to have, passports, hotels, meals and any and everything you can think of. If your dream is a trip to France but you can't afford it, ask your wine store experts to point you toward some domestic varieties you might also enjoy and enjoy visiting.
