EO-10444 Informal Solicitation for Proposals For Cultural Monitoring Services Sewer Conversion Project For the City of Irrigon, Oregon

Effort: The City of Irrigon is undertaking a project funded by U.S. Housing and Urban Development - Community Development Block Grant and U.S. Environmental Protection Agency - Clean Water State Revolving Loan Fund. As a part of the City's environmental review efforts, a cultural resource monitor was requested by the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation and Oregon's State Historic Preservation Office to observe ground-disturbing activities in areas previously undisturbed. The construction work will take place entirely within City-owned easements and Right-of-Ways. The sewer pipeline alignment generally follows the centerline of the existing roadways. Trenches will be excavated along the entire pipeline alignment for installation of the pipe and manholes/cleanouts. Approximately 3,500 LF of pipe will be installed. Contractor will develop a Monitoring and Inadvertent Discovery Plan detailing methods and procedures for the construction monitoring, provide a cultural resource monitor during ground-disturbing construction, and prepare and submit a monitoring report summarizing construction activity and cultural resource discoveries to the Oregon State Historic Preservation Office upon completion of the project. Requirements: Contractor must be on the Oregon Preservation Contractor Directory. EPA Clean Water Revolving Loan Fund requires all consultants to register through SAM.gov (System for Award Management) SAM #: Assumptions: Direction from the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation stipulated that the cultural monitor screen excavated sediments periodically, with the exception of road bed and fill materials. Construction is estimated to start soon after January 1, 2020, but weather conditions will determine actual start date. Ground disturbance needing monitoring activity is confined to the excavation of previously undisturbed ground within the City Right of Ways. Cultural monitor will coordinate with Prime Contractor (to be procured) and Grant Administrator (Ducote Consulting) regarding days needed on-site and the construction schedule. The SOW assumes 45 (forty-five) days of construction monitoring of a 215 contract period and no inadvertent discoveries, which would require additional archaeological investigations. The project is within known and possible cultural resources in the area. Any complex inadvertent discoveries in accordance with ORS and will require a Change Order (co) and revised cost estimate. If additional days of monitoring are required, work in excess of this estimate may be authorized with written notice from the Client. Change orders (co) will be processed by the City and Business Oregon. Deliverables: Contractor will prepare a Monitoring and Inadvertent Discovery Plan. Contractor will prepare a Monitoring Report upon completion of the project. Proposed Cost for Services: Per day cost of services, all-inclusive of travel and other expenses: Not to exceed: Due Date: Responses received by November 8, 2019. Responses should include resume, Personal Services Agreement template, relevant project experience, a per-day price, and a not-to-exceed quote of services for 45 days of work. The City would prefer your submitted packet be 5 pages or less. Questions: Direct all questions about this RFP to the City of Irrigon, City Manager: Aaron Palmquist at manager@ci.irrigon.or.us / 500 NE Main Ave. / PO Box 428/ Irrigon, OR 97844 Work under this contract will be funded in its entirety by with federal funds from the Oregon Community Development Block Grant Program and the EPA Clean Water Revolving Loan Fund. Published October 24th of 2019.
