HALLOWEEN GUIDE | FURRY FRIENDS

Dressing up your Pet? Safety First!

Is there anything cuter than a dog dressed up for Halloween?

From bumblebees to ghosts, pooch costumes abound on social media this time of year. And for good reason. As long as your dog is comfortable in his costume, it's an adorable way to get him involved in your Halloween festivities. Pet costumes continue to gain popularity, with nearly 20% of Americans dressing their pets in costumes in 2018, according to the National Retail Federation. So this year, don't forget to include Fido when you go out shopping for the perfect Halloween outfits for your family.

Here are the top-ranked pet costumes from last year from the NRF: pumpkin, 1.2%; hot dog, 7.4%; bumblebee, 4.9%; devil, 3.2%; cat, 3.1%; dog, 3.1%; lion, 2.9%; Star Wars character, 2.8%; superhero,

2.7%; and ghost, 2.5%

Remember that the key to a great Halloween costume is creativity, so don't be afraid to stray from the list above.

SAFETY FIRST

No matter what you decide to dress Fido in this year, remember that his safety and comfort level are of the utmost importance. Consider what the costume is made from and how it fits the pet to make sure you're not putting them in something that will cause stress or injuries.

Here are some tips from the pet safety site Petful.com:

Find a costume that fits just right — not too tight and not too loose. The dog should be able to sit, walk and use the bathroom normally without the costume getting in the way.

Make sure the costume does not impair the dog's senses. Keep the mouth, whiskers, eyes and ears free.

Choose scent-free. A dog's sense of smell is very sensitive so avoid costumes that smell of chemicals, plastic or other strong odors to prevent them from becoming overwhelmed or sick.

Do not use flammable materials.

Avoid chewable parts. Buttons and pins are choking hazards, so be sure to play it safe by using Velcro or other safe fasteners.

Limit how long they wear the costume, especially if it's an unseasonably warm on Halloween day.
