Edward Quade Winter

Pendleton
April 8, 1951 — October 8, 2019

Edward Quade Winter died at his home in Pendleton on October 8, 2019. He was 68. He was born to Mel and Margaret Winter of Pendleton in 1951.

Early in life his family referred to him as Quade and the name stuck all through his life.

Quade was a 1970 PHS graduate and also graduated from the University of Oregon in 1978 with degrees in theater and music. Quade was interested in plays, Broadway musicals and opera at an early age. In his college years, he began a musical theatre career but soon turned to classical music. He graduated from the Merola Opera Program in 1980. While there, he sang with San Francisco Opera. He then began a career as an operatic tenor, singing roles in opera and oratorio, during the next 23 years, in Germany (where he lived in the 1980s), Austria, the United States, Canada, Mexico, the Dominican Republic and elsewhere. As a professional opera singer he sang in over 60 operas, with over 20 leading roles. He counted among his achievements singing at Carnegie Hall, San Francisco Opera, and at the La Scala Opera House in Italy.

By far his favorite operas were the light operas written by the famous British composers Gilbert and Sullivan.

Of interest was their 1871 opera, "Thespis," for which the music had been lost for over 100 years. Quade took on the task of writing an original musical score for nearly the entire opera. It was first performed by the Ohio Light Opera in 1996. Quade continued to compose original music as well as translate and arrange existing music.

Of late Quade had translated and arranged pieces for both the Pendleton Men's Chorus and the Oregon East Symphony. Even though Quade had a worldwide career in music, he was happy to be living in Pendleton again and enjoyed his work with local musicians.

Quade is survived by his sister Liz Nase of North Plaines, Ore., and brothers Rick Winter (Sandy) of Tigard, Ore., George Winter (Ruth) of Sunnysvale, Calif., and Phil Winter (Boone) of Pendleton. Many nieces and nephews will miss Uncle Quade.

Per his wishes, no service will be held. In lieu of flowers, please consider a donation to the Pendleton Men's Chorus, care of Burns Mortuary.

Burns Mortuary of Pendleton is in charge of arrangements. Sign the online guestbook at www.burnsmortuary.com.

Baker City's first 2 solar farms near completion

By SAMANTHA O'CONNOR
EO Media Group

BAKER CITY — Construction is nearing completion on Baker County's first two solar power farms, the larger of which is near Sutton Creek Road about 6 miles southeast of Baker City.

That array of about 50,000 panels is roughly 1 mile east of the landfill and about seven-tenths of a mile south of Interstate 84.

Enerparc Solar Projects LLC of Oakland, California, is building that solar farm as well as a second project near Unity, in southern Baker County.

Construction manager Douglas Stevens said work on the Sutton Creek project started Aug. 30, and company officials expect the farm to be online around Dec. 15.

"This one is fast-paced," Stevens said.

Currently, workers are driving in piles — the metal bars that will hold the solar panels. The piles have to be driven a minimum of 6 feet into the ground.

Stevens said he hopes to have the 50,000 panels installed within two weeks.

Workers install frames that will hold solar panels near Sutton Creek Road about 6 miles southeast of Baker City.

The panels are on motorized tracks that shift the panels as the sun moves to maximize power production.

The Sutton Creek project will cost an estimated $2.65 million, according to a permit issued by the Baker City-County Building Department.

The company paid almost $27,000 in permit fees.

The solar array will produce 15 megawatts of power. That's enough to power approximately 3,000 homes.

The Unity project, which should be finished soon and go online in mid-November, will produce about 2.75 megawatts from an array covering about 23 acres.

Stevens said about 35 people are working on the Sutton Creek solar farm, including employees from contractor Vale Electric Inc.

Crews are also finishing a substation near Interstate 84 that will connect the solar farm to Idaho Power Company's transmission line.

Work on the substation started in early July, according to Idaho Power, which is building the substation.

Both the solar farm and the substation are on property owned by Hat Brand Land & Livestock LLC of Baker City.

Brent Gyllenberg is Hat Brand's manager.

Enerparc applied in March for a permit to divide Hat Brand's parcel into two parts. The one where the solar panels are being installed is 549.6 acres, and the site for the substation, between I-84 and Old Highway 30, is slightly larger than one-half acre.
