Umatilla boys, girls soccer fall to Eagles in first round

East Oregonian

PORTLAND — The Umatilla boys soccer team’s 3A/2A/1A state playoff run came to an untimely end on Tuesday afternoon as the Vikings were shut out 6-0 by host Catlin Gabel Eagles in the first round.

The loss halted a four-match streak for the Vikings, who finished regular season play at No. 2 in the Special District 6 standings. It is the second year in a row that the Vikings fell in the first round of the state playoffs after losing to Oregon Episcopal 6-1 last season.

Girls soccer

CATLIN GABEL 8, UMATILLA 0 — The hosting Eagles put up seven goals in the first half alone to keep the Vikings from advancing in the 3A/2A/1A girls soccer state playoffs on Tuesday.

“We played the first half pretty scared,” Umatilla head coach Tim Lee said, “but we frustrated them quite a bit in the second half. We pushed the ball on their end and held our own.”

The Vikings finished their season at No. 2 in the Special District 6 standings. Tuesday’s match marked their first playoff appearance since 2014, where they dropped a 4-3 match to Western Mennonite/Perrydale in the first round.

“I’ve done this for 13 years now,” Lee said, “and this is a great group of girls. Our three seniors (Lizzy Burres, Patty Burres, and Natalie Soto) definitely showed the definition of leadership this year, and our underclassmen show a lot of potential.”

CFP: Ohio State, LSU, Alabama and Penn State

Utah was eighth and Oklahoma, the highest-ranked team from the Big 12, was ninth. Florida gave the SEC four of the top 10 teams.

Another SEC team, Auburn, was 11th, followed by Baylor, one of the country’s surprising unbeaten teams.

The highest-ranked team among Group of Five conference schools was Cincinnati out of the American Athletic Conference at No. 20. The top team from outside the Power Five conferences gets a New Year’s Six bowl bid.

It was hard to call anything a surprise — or all that important — in the first rankings, but Clemson being out of the top four was notable.

The good news for the Tigers is the teams in front of them have to play one another. LSU is at Alabama on Saturday. The teams are No. 1 and No. 2, respectively, in the AP Top 25 but are second and third in the CFP rankings.

Ohio State and Penn State face off on Nov. 23. The Nittany Lions also face a challenge this week when they visit unbeaten Minnesota, which was ranked 17th by the committee.

As long as Clemson keeps winning, the Tigers should be OK.

What could really turn the race inside out are upsets. With four weeks left before championship weekend when the playoff and bowl game berths are set, unranked teams have opportunities to provide potential twists and turns:

WEEK 11

Iowa State at No. 9 Oklahoma. The Cyclones came into the season ranked and were considered maybe the third-best team in the Big

12. They have lost three times, but by a combined 10 points. If the Sooners were to take a second loss, suddenly Baylor becomes not just the best playoff hope for the Big 12, but maybe the only one.

WEEK 12

UCLA at No. 8 Utah. The Bruins have won three straight games after a terrible start and are still in control of their Pac-12 South championship hopes. The Utes have been dominant, but coach Chip Kelly could turn this into his first signature win at UCLA and ruin the Pac-12’s hope of a Utah-Oregon title game matching 11-1 teams.

Penn State at Indiana. The Hoosiers are on their way to their best season in 15 years and they will face the Nittany Lions after Minnesota and before Ohio State.

WEEK 13

Texas A&M at Georgia. The Aggies have already faced Alabama and Clemson. The Bulldogs might be more at their level. Another loss would all but eliminate the Bulldogs and could complicate the SEC’s hopes of landing two teams in the final four.

WEEK 14

Texas A&M at LSU. If LSU is No. 1, this would be the third top-ranked team the Aggies have faced this season. Another chance to derail the SEC’s master plan.

Clemson at South Carolina. Clemson has won five straight in the rivalry and most have not been close. It’s hard to find even a hint of upset potential on the Tigers’ schedule, but a rivalry game on the road? Maybe? And one loss could be one too many for Clemson considering the state of the rest of the ACC.

Pirates: ‘My blood was pumping’

Zoie Fisher pushed the ball out of bounds to keep the Pirates at bay and push the contest into overtime.

“We were dominating the first half,” Riverside coach Carlos Velasco said. “I told them they were doing all the good things they needed to do, except for scoring. We needed to finish it off.”

Neftali Pacheco and senior forward Yoanna Lopez both had shots on goal early into the first of two 10-minute overtime periods, but Marisol Pacheco sealed the win with her goal that came with just 33 seconds left to play, advancing the Pirates to the next round.

“My blood was pumping,” Pacheco said. “I was ready. I kept shooting and shooting but nothing would go in. I just kept shooting until I finally got one.”

Junior midfielder Cinthya Diaz assisted Pacheco with another goal in the second overtime contest, but an offsidess penalty negated the score. But the Challengers remained goalless for the rest of the match, keeping the Pirates out front for good.

Velasco said. “The girls did it. They stayed in the game and played as a team.”

The Pirates will host the Lewis & Clark League’s top-ranked Catlin Gabel Eagles this Saturday in a quarterfinals match.
