DEAR ABBY

Teen's sudden death comes amid fractured friendship

Dear Abby: Last year, after a falling out with someone I have been friends with for more than 20 years, I was OK with writing this person off and going on with my life. From my understanding, this person felt the Last week, their teenage son died in a terrible accident. I was heartbroken. I truly cared about the boy and had watched him grow up. I reached out and received no response (as I expected). I'm torn about whether I should go to the funeral and how it would be perceived. I want to show support, but I'm concerned I'm not wanted there. I'm also concerned that if I don't go it will look awful and disrespectful, since I have been a part of this boy's life. I don't know what to do. — Cared For Him

Dear Cared For Him: You may not have heard from the family because they are grieving and not communicating with everyone. a friend who is always whispering in his As I see it, you have several choices: Send a condolence card, send flowers, contribute to a charity in the young man's name and/or go unobtrusively to the funeral and sit in the back. If, however, you decide to do this, do not go with any expectation it will heal the breach in your rela-

Dear Abby: I was happily married for almost 20 years. Suddenly my husband became withdrawn, obviously unhappy, and moved out. He keeps telling me we are going to spend the rest of our lives together, that we

Although I had a great relationship with his family, they no longer speak to me. My family still treats him the same. He has

Dear Disillusioned: You are not only being used, but also being lied to. In addition, your in-laws' behavior is emotionally abusive. (Could they have been told things about you that aren't true?) Offer your

Dear Abby: After an invitation to visit, how long can I stay before I'm imposing? —

Too Long in New Mexico Dear Too Long: It depends upon the relationship you have with the person who invited you. Usually, when an invitation is extended, it is for a specified time period — a week, a weekend, etc.

Two truisms apply here: "Guests, like fish, begin to smell after three days" (Benjamin Franklin), and "One of the most important things that Hollywood teaches is to always leave your audience hungry for a little more" (Howard Bragman).

DAYS GONE BY

From the East Oregonian

100 Years Ago June 26, 1921

Three new features ordinarily not found in an exhibition of Western riding will be afforded spectators of the Camas Prairie Cowboys' convention which will be held at Ukiah July 4 and 5. The stunts will be a calf branding contest, goat roping and a pack horse race. The usual cowboy bucking contest, cowboy and cowgirl relay races, free for all race, cowboy pony race, a wild mule race, steer roping, quick change race, stake and maverick races and a wild horse race are some the other stunts that will insure plenty of activities for the two days of sports.

Ed Irby of Arlington will be grand marshal of the Condon Chamber of Commerce's "Grand Ole Fourth" parade. Irby, a resident of Gilliam County for almost 60 years, gained statewide recognition the past year as the author and producer of the film "Beneath the Stilled Waters," a movie showing the Indians fishing at Celilo Falls before the demise of the tourist attraction.

Umatilla County Republicans wasted no time getting their message across to U.S. Rep. Wes Cooley. The county's central committee faxed Cooley its no-vote on his future political career on Tuesday. "We thought we needed to tell him right away," said Tim O'Hanlon, a Pendleton attorney and chairman of the Umatilla County Republican Central Committee. The committee met at noon Tuesday to vote on whether Cooley should step aside and allow another Republican to retain a seat in the sprawling 2nd Congressional District. Almost all of the county's 60 precinct members showed at the lunchtime meeting at Pendleton's Kopper Kitchen restaurant. The vote, O'Hanlon said, was unanimous.
