

OBITUARIES

Terri Lee Hahn

Aug. 31, 1948 — Sept. 16, 2021

Pendleton

After a beautiful life rich with self-discovery, love and adventure, Terri Lee Hahn said goodbye to her friends, family and the earthly plain to continue on to the next chapter of her journey on Sept. 16, 2021.

Terri, one of 11 children from two combined families, was born to Donald Fullerton and Jean (Grub) Fullerton on Aug. 31, 1948, in Pendleton, Oregon. She married Ron Hahn in 1966 and followed him from Navy port to port until eventually, the couple resettled in Pendleton. Together, they had two sons, Dean in 1966 and Andy in 1973. During her sons' school years, she took a job as a school bus driver so she could be home for them every afternoon. Subsequently, she spent 20 years working at Blue Mountain Community College. She and Ron also spent over 20 years running Full Circle Bodywork & Massage practice out of their home; Terri had many devoted clients who appreciated her strong hands and sharp elbows.

When Terri's son, Andy, married Addie and the pair produced two grandsons, Oslo and then Ansel, Terri was overjoyed. In anticipation of Oslo's birth in 2011, Terri took juggling and ukulele lessons so she could be a "cool grandma" and provide her grandkids with live entertainment as they grew. A skilled thrifter, she created magnificent wardrobes for herself and both grandkids for very little money and made holidays unforgettable with ever-patient, many-hours-long Easter egg hunts and hotel suites decorated for Christmas' at McMenamins Edgefield.

Terri drew loving souls toward her; not surprisingly, she had armfuls of special friends she maintained close ties with until the very end. Good friends, family, animals, neighbors, massage clients and even many strangers were dear to Terri. She embraced humans in their entirety, flaws and all, and was always ready with a compassionate ear and hugs. She could laugh at something silly and cry with you when you needed it most, all in the same afternoon.

Terri walked through the world with a vibrant, almost childlike wonder. Travel, whether to the grocery to try a new kind of Kombucha, with her kids on road trips in the family van, or on a flight to a foreign land, like China, Tibet, Japan, Europe or Mexico, energized her and brought even more color and depth to her world. In art classes, she made beautiful stained glass pieces. On trips to Breitenbush, Indralaya and Hollyhock in Canada, she explored her spiritual awareness and strove always for increased love and understanding.

Terri hoped, in retirement, to make many more trips with Ron, including nearby to their beloved Country Fair and as far away as Vietnam, but alas, was diagnosed shortly thereafter with Alzheimer's.

Wherever Terri's spirit rests now, she has lodged herself here into the hearts of too many to count. Her affection, humility and kindness made the world a brighter, more forgiving place. In 2017, shortly after her dementia diagnosis, she was visiting her son's family home. In an ordinary moment, with her then 6-year-old grandson running laps around the kitchen, she turned to Oslo and paused to rest her hand on his arm. "If I never saw you again," she said, "I would love you to the ends of the earth." Given who she was, we trust Terri felt this way about many whose paths she crossed. We too, as those who were honored to receive her love, feel the same way about her.

The Hahns will host a celebration of life when the COVID-19 risk declines — hopefully sometime this spring.

Duane Godsey Wood

April 29, 1940 — Sept. 20, 2021

Pendleton

Wood

Duane Godsey Wood was born April 29, 1940, and passed away on Monday, Sept. 20, 2021. He was born to Marvin and Vada Wood in Baker City. He was the fifth of five children, Darrell, Melvin, Darwin and Carol.

He is survived by his sister, Carol; wife, Chris; and six children, their wives and families: Robert and Heather Wood, Jeffrey and Jennifer Wood, Kimberly and David Nall, Leslie and Nathan Kerns, Melissa and Travis Stoddard, David and Etta Wood; 26 grandchildren; and 11 great-grandchildren and as of today three more on the way. Duane's first wife, Ardythe, passed away in 2008. Upon marrying Chris in 2010, Duane gained eight other children; 16 grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Duane spent most of his childhood in Union. He was active in sports and disinterested in school. He played football, basketball and track. He was the state high jump champion in 1958. He loved to hunt and worked with his dad in the logging business.

Duane grew up knowing Ardythe Wilde, and would sit behind her and pull her hair in school. Ardythe's parents were the stake missionaries and taught Duane the gospel of Jesus Christ. A year after his baptism, Duane went on a mission to Kentucky. Upon return from his mission in 1962, he married Ardythe in the Logan Utah Temple.

Duane graduated from Oregon State University with a degree in microbiology. They eventually settled in Pendleton where they raised their six children. Duane's love of the outdoors led to many camping trips and trips to the beach.

Duane loved his Heavenly Father and Jesus Christ. As a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, he served with the youth for many years, was a bishop in the Pendleton first ward and president of the Walla Walla Stake. He served a mission to Okinawa, Japan, with Ardythe in 2004.

Upon Ardythe's death in 2008, Duane became acquainted with Christine Baxter from La Grande and they were married in 2010. The distance of their children led them to travel all over the United States and Europe.

Duane was diagnosed with idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis in 2012. This was the cause of his persistent cough. As big of a burden as his cough was, he said it reminded him that he was alive. Duane was quietly patriotic and loved this land. He found deep respect as he walked in nature. He said it spoke to him and told him, "Be Good."

Joyce Marie Weathermon (Evans)

Nov. 12, 1958 — Sept. 17, 2021

Tollgate

Joyce Marie Weathermon (Evans) was born in Toppenish, Washington, on Nov. 12, 1958. She grew up in Richland and Benton City, Washington, where she graduated from Ki-Be High School in 1976.

Joyce attended business college as well as Eastern Oregon University where she studied early childhood development.

In 1980, she married the love of her life, Lynn Weathermon.

After moving to Stanfield in 1990, Joyce opened a daycare and also started a daycare program at the local high school where she later became the high school secretary. Joyce and Lynn retired to Tollgate in 2019 where they would travel and spend time with their family.

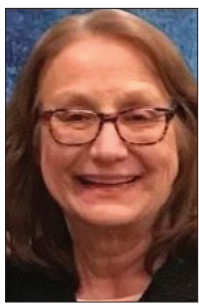

Joyce's passions were raising her children and attending their many sporting activities, spending time with her grandchildren, crafting, quilting and family campouts.

Joyce is preceded in death by her mother and stepfather, Louise and Lloyd Judkins; step-sister, Bambi Judkins; and stepbrother, Lloyd Judkins II.

She is survived by her husband, Lynn Weathermon; children, Justin (Catherine) Weathermon, Danielle (James) Snell, Crystal (David) Olden; grandchildren, Brooks, Isabelle and Henry; her father, David Evans; her sister, Tina Rossine; and brother, Allen Evans.

A celebration of Joyce's life will be held at the Island City City Hall, 10605 Island Ave., Oct. 3 at 11 a.m. Friends and family may share memories of Joyce and leave condolences to the family at mountainview-colonialdewitt.com.

Shannon Leigh Byler

April 4, 1966 — Sept. 16, 2021

Nampa, Idaho

The family of Shannon Leigh Byler are heartbroken to announce her passing on Thursday, Sept. 16, 2021, after a decades long battle with cancer at her home in Nampa, Idaho, with loved ones. Shannon's spirit and zest for life was that of someone that does not come along very often, and she passed leaving many, many friends both personal and online whom she loved dearly and they in turn loved her. It is not a stretch to say that if you knew Shannon, you loved her, and she gave that love right back.

Shannon had a smile and sparkling eyes that would light up a room when she walked into it, so much so that people were drawn to her. Shannon's love for them was evident in the way she treated them and helped them in whatever way she could.

Although Shannon battled cancer for many, many years, she was always positive and upbeat. In fact, if you didn't know Shannon had cancer, you would not have been able to tell because she lived her life with such gusto. Shannon also did her best to lift others up and help them battle whatever they were dealing within.

Shannon was a loving mother, daughter, sister, soulmate and friend. Shannon doted on her children and grandchildren, going to most (if not all) of their athletic games. Shannon was particularly excited that her granddaughter played varsity softball and that her grandson had started playing T-ball.

Shannon loved football and baseball. Her favorite team was the Boise State Broncos, and you could see her at almost every home game (even when she was living in Vancouver, Washington, and Portland, Oregon). In addition to her beloved Broncos, Shannon also loved rooting for the Seattle Seahawks and Seattle Mariners and could be seen from time-to-time at those games.

Shannon also had her hand in drag racing and was at the track pretty much every weekend during race season and loved watching her soulmate, Scott Utter, race at places like Woodburn. Needless to say, Shannon was a sports fanatic.

Shannon also loved her job. Shannon was a senior loan processor and worked at Summit Mortgage in Vancouver for many years and loved it. Shannon enjoyed helping people with loans and especially spending time with her co-employees whom she considered to be family.

Shannon was predeceased by her grandparents, Warren and Mary Dale Keeney, and Lloyd and Dorothy Galde; her uncles, Pete Galde, Ted Galde and Michael Keeney; and her aunt, Kris Keeney. Shannon is survived by her father, Warren Keeney; her mother, Susan Reiman; her brothers, Mick Keeney and Jacob Keeney; her sister, Jetta Meadows; her daughter, Jen Byler; and son, Logan Byler; Jen's daughter, Brooklyn; and son, Luca; her soulmate, Scott Utter; numerous aunts, uncles and cousins.

In lieu of flowers, the family asks that a donation be made in her name to breast cancer research.

Patsy Marie 'Pat' Vincent

March 15, 1937 — Sept. 20, 2021

Ukiah

Patsy Marie "Pat" Vincent, 84, died Sept. 20, 2021, at her home in Ukiah. She was born March 15, 1937, in John Day to Donald Alexander and Ida Cora "Ullman" Sheff.

Patsy moved with her family to Ukiah in 1941. In 1955, she graduated from Ukiah High School and then on Aug. 14 she married James Douglas "Doug" Vincent. In 1964, they packed their five little children into a school bus they had converted into a camper and drove to Alaska. They lived for a while in Fairbanks, Alaska, and Valdez, Alaska, and then settled in Alaska Village for several happy years. After Doug sustained a permanently disabling injury and their son, Douglas, died, they packed up and returned to Oregon in 1975.

Over the years, Pat and Doug worked side-by-side (and with some of their children) as they owned and operated several small businesses. They owned a truck repair shop. They rebuilt wrecked trucks and custom built water tank trucks, with Pat climbing inside and welding them from the inside while Doug welded from the outside. Pat created beautiful tuck-and-roll upholstery for the trucks.

Later they moved to Ukiah and together with their son, ran a restaurant/gas station/laundromat.

Pat pumped her last tank of gas at age 81. Pat was an excellent cook who made the best pies and potato salad ever and was warm and welcoming to those who frequented the business. In her later years, she loved baking desserts for her Bunko and Bingo friends. Pat was much loved by the many hunters and mushroom gatherers who made a point of visiting when they came through Ukiah every year.

Survivors include her children, Neena Leran of Wasilla, Alaska, Vonnice Ceja of Vancouver, Washington, Terrie Lockwood of Portland, Dan Vincent of Ukiah; sisters, Betty Barber of Ukiah, Nancy Rogers of Irrigon, Joedy Flitner of Mountain View, Wyoming; uncle, Westley Heard of Pilot Rock; eight grandchildren, 12 great-grandchildren and numerous nieces and nephews.

A graveside service will be held at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 29, 2021, at Ukiah Cemetery. A reception will follow at the Ukiah Senior Center. Share online condolences with the family at pioneerchapel.com.
