ENTERPRISE — The monthly Tunesmith Night, sponsored by the Wallowa Valley Music Alliance, is opening to a live, in-person audience once again.

This showcase of original music happens Saturday, March 12, 7 p.m. in the historic Odd Fellows Hall, 105 NE First St. Admission is $10 at the door.

The show, which will also be streamed live on wvmusicalliance.org and the WVMA YouTube channel, features songwriters Forrest VanTuyl, Jeremy Ferrara and Erisy Watt.

FORREST VANTUYL

VanTuyl writes songs, cowboys and counts Wallowa County among the many places he's called home. He has performed at the National Cowboy Poetry Gathering, written music for the U.S. Forest Service, and had lyrics published in the New York Times.

JEREMY FERRARA

Ferrara is a folksinger, and his new album, "Everything I Hold," is out now on American Standard Time Records. Produced by Mike Coykendall, the LP features just Ferrara, his guitar and voice, on eight songs intended to fill the listener with wonder, empathy and joy.

ERISY WATT

Portland-based Watt makes music that "beautifully alludes to iconic vocalists of the 1960s but finds a more fitting home in the vintage-tinged indie ether of Bedouine, Haley Heynderickx, or Julie Byrne." On her anticipated sophomore album, "Eyes like the Ocean" (out April 1 via American Standard Time Records), she calls upon the expanse of earth and sky to navigate life as an adult woman.
