Printmaking exhibits feature works created at Crow's Shadow

East Oregonian

MISSION — A pair of printmaking exhibits showcasing the creations of Native American artists at Crow's Shadow Institute of the Arts are featured in Wasco and Hood River counties. More than two dozen Native artists participated in two-week residencies at Crow's Shadow, producing the works for "Contemporary Native Voices: Prints from the Crow's Shadow Institute of the Arts."

The exhibitions can be viewed through March 26 at The Dalles Art Center, 220 E. Fourth St., and Columbia Center for the Arts, 215 Cascade Ave., Hood River. Both facilities are open Tuesday through Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. There is no admission charge.

Each year, Crow's Shadow invites a select number of visual artists and sculptors to participate in its residency program. Artists produce limited edition prints on subject matters of their choosing.

A 13-minute Oregon Public Broadcasting segment on March 14 provides information about the exhibit, including interviews with two of the artists. In the audio Think Out Loud broadcast, Lillian Pitt, a Native artist from the Wasco, Yakama and Warm Springs Tribes, and Natalie Ball, an Afro-Indigenous artist from the Klamath, Modoc and Tahlequah Tribes, shared about their art and experiences at Crow's Shadow. To listen, search www.opb.org.

Crow's Shadow is housed at the historic Saint Andrews Mission, about 10 miles outside of Pendleton. The nonprofit organization was founded nearly three decades ago under the guidance of local artists James Lavadour (Walla Walla), Phillip Cash Cash (Cayuse and Nez Perce) and their creative friends. It was envisioned as a place for creative folks from the area to foster artistic development.

Hiring a master printer in 2001, Crow's Shadow turned its focus to printmaking. Since then, its reputation for publishing fine art lithography has grown and artworks produced in the studio have been featured in many esteemed institutions, including the Library of Congress, the Whitney Museum of American Art and the Smithsonian's National Museum of the American Indian.

Elva Waneta Terry
February 17, 1938 - February 12, 2022

Peggy Terry, 83, of Pendleton, Oregon, went home to be with her Lord and Savior on Saturday, Feb. 12, 2022. She was born in Redlands, California, on Feb. 17, 1938, to Charles Lloyd and India Nenia Smith.

She was survived by her son, Thomas D (Susan) Parker, Nebraska; and her three daughters, Nenia (Gary) Henderson, Pendleton; Cate (Todd) Reynolds; Pendleton; and Myra Lynn Parker, Colorado Springs, Colorado; six grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren along with a passel of "borrowed" grandchildren who loved and adored her and called her Mema.

Peggy graduated from Redlands High School in 1955 and then worked for the United States Air Force as a civilian administrative assistant. Peggy and David Parker met each other through mutual friends at church and they were married in 1956. The two of them lived in different towns along the Sierra Nevadas, loving life and each other. Along the way, they "filled their quiver" with children and Peggy balanced raising them with fulfilling her dream to become a nurse. She attended a local community college and received her LPN.

Feeling God's calling to enter full-time ministry, David left a promising career, and the Parker family packed all their belongings and headed for Nazarene Bible College in Colorado Springs. Peggy embraced the idea of becoming a pastor's wife, joining David as a student at NBC and received a degree in piano pedagogy. She also took up a hobby, learning how to decorate cakes; she blessed many friends and relatives with her beautiful creations.

They accepted God's divine calling to pastor several smaller churches in the Pacific Northwest and in 1979 Peggy received her RN degree at BMCC. Her nursing career spanned over 40-plus years from labor and delivery to hospice and even to elementary children at Holbrook Navajo Indian School in Arizona. Peggy knew God had given her a gift to care for others.

She was never ashamed to share the truth of the Gospel and took advantage of each opportunity to share the love and faithfulness of her Heavenly Father with her patients. Her life was dedicated to proclaiming the beautiful redemptive story of Jesus Christ as a mother, pastor's wife and nurse.

Although riddled with Alzheimer's in her last years, Peggy's love for Jesus never wavered. She was known to share him with friends and strangers alike; she was quick to sing a song or share a personal story of his redeeming love and divine guidance throughout her life. She often would end her encounters by saying "can I sing you a song?" and then she would sing "Jesus loves me this I know, for the Bible tells me so..."

Peggy was preceded in death by her husband of 47 years, David Buford Parker; by her second husband, Carl Terry; and her grandson, Brent Joseph Alan Reynolds.

A celebration of life service will be held Friday, March 25, at 10:30 a.m. at the Pendleton Church of the Nazarene. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions can be made to donate Gideon Bibles in memory of Peggy. Visit sendtheword.org
