 May 30, 1945 - March 31, 2022

Fay Ann Harvey Newton was born on May 30, 1945, to Andrew and Grace (Rodda) Harvey in Pendleton. She passed on March 31, 2022, in Spokane.
 She was the youngest of three daughters raised on a ranch on Despain Gulch. Her childhood was full of horses, friends and family. She attended schools in Pendleton, graduating in 1963. Her first years of college were at the University of Oregon, and she later received both a bachelor's and master's degree in education from Eastern Oregon College.
 Fay married Steve Bunker in 1964. They had three children, Brigitte, Spencer and Clint. They were later divorced. She married Greg Newton in 1987. He brought a daughter, Tiffany, into the family.
 Fay was a teacher for many years. She taught in Umatilla County schools for several years, then moved to western Oregon. She met Greg while teaching in the Eugene area.
 Fay loved to travel. In her earlier years, she lived in Mexico briefly while attending college and then lived in Berlin, Germany, while her husband, Steve, served in the military. After Fay and Greg married, they traveled often, with trips to Europe, Central America and Cuba, as well as many road trips around the United States. Their children and grandchildren were sometimes lucky enough to travel with them.
 She had a beautiful soprano voice, winning the state solo contest in high school. She played Kate in "Kiss Me, Kate" in college, sang for a short while with Portland Opera and continued her singing with the Oregon East Symphony Chorale after her return to Pendleton. Her time in the theater gave her a love of making costumes which she used to make costumes for the Westward Ho! Parade.
 When they retired, she and Greg moved to West Birch Creek outside of Pilot Rock to care for her mother. They have made their home there since. Their retirement years have been filled with family, pets, travel and country living.

Nancy Mae (Fisher) Amon
 October 21, 1953 – December 30, 2021

Nancy Mae (Fisher) Amon passed away December 30, 2021, at the age of 68, at Providence St. Mary Medical Center in Walla Walla, Washington. She went into the emergency room the evening prior, was transferred to the ICU in the early morning, and passed away unexpectedly soon after of heart failure with her husband Danny by her side.
 Nancy was born in Moses Lake, Washington on October 21, 1953, the youngest of three daughters born to Richard and Blanche (Hood) Fisher. She grew up in Moses Lake and then Milton-Freewater, Oregon where she graduated from Walla Walla Valley Academy and later attended Walla Walla College. She fell in love with Danny Amon of Milton-Freewater and they married on November 27th, 1976. Both Nancy's and Danny's families moved to Milton-Freewater in their early childhood, but they attended different schools and did not meet until their early twenties when Danny returned from two years in the military.
 Danny and Nancy bought a home in Hermiston, OR where Danny drove truck for UPS. It was there they welcomed a daughter, Melissa, and a son, Ean, three years later. In 1985 they relocated to a small farm in Milton-Freewater to be closer with family. While living in an older, single-wide mobile home on seven acres, Nancy designed her dream home, which Danny made a reality after several tireless years of late nights and long weekends. It was in this home they raised their children and retired, and where Nancy grew impressive vegetable and flower gardens.
 Nancy loved gardening and creating a peaceful and beautiful space outdoors amongst her flowers. She also had a passion for healthy cooking and produced incredibly delicious whole-foods meals for her family using the vegetables grown in her own garden. She raised chickens, a love she discovered through her sister, Ruth, and spoiled them with organic feed, a huge garden to forage, and the utmost care. They produced a bounty of delicious eggs, which, along with her garden produce, was shared with many lucky friends and family.
 An immensely talented seamstress, Nancy was known for her detailed and beautiful work, creating everything from wedding dresses to men's suits and western equestrian wear, with countless alterations and repairs. In the later years of her sewing, she acquired a heavy-duty leather sewing machine and produced amazing chaps and outfits for many years for the Walla Walla Fair Court and Pioneer Posse, as well as several other area fair courts. Nancy's love of sewing started at a very young age, taught by her mother, and lasted over 60 years.
 Nancy was also a passionate crafter, often sending incredible homemade cards to friends and family that were both beautiful and personal. She amassed an extensive assortment of stamps, inks, and other paper-crafting supplies in her incredibly organized craft room, which was featured as the December Studio Showcase Winner by Stamp-n-Storage in 2020. It was in this room that her organization and crafting skills shined, and it was her happy place where she would lose hours creating amazing works while listening to her soothing classical piano music, usually with one of her beloved cats for company.
 Nancy had a kind heart and was loved and cherished by all who had the honor of knowing her. Everyone and everything she touched was her top priority and received her full attention and care. Her husband, children, family, friends, cats, chickens, and garden were all number one.
 Nancy was preceded in death by her parents and both of her sisters, Ruth and Rosalie. She is survived by her husband, Danny Amon; daughter, Melissa Cochran and grandchildren, Kylie and Preston; son, Ean Amon (Brooke); nephew, Kevin Callos (Alisa); and many cousins and extended family.
 A memorial of Nancy's life will be held Sunday, April 24th at 2 p.m., at Mountain View-Colonial DeWitt, 1551 The Dalles Military Rd, Walla Walla, WA. Friends and family may share memories of Nancy and sign the online guestbook at www.mountainview-colonialdewitt.com.
