PENDLETON — Dancers got their swing going Saturday night, April 23, in Pendleton and payed homage to the Doolittle Raiders.

Pendleton Air Museum presented the Doolittle Dance! in the Let 'Er Buck Room. The USO-style event featured 1940s swing music from the band Brass Fire, a no-host bar and hors d'oeuvres.

The event raised funds to help build the air museum and honored the 80th anniversary of the Doolittle Raid., in which Pendleton Field and airmen played central roles.

In America's first offensive action of World War II, 16 B-25 Mitchell medium bombers flew off aircraft carrier USS Hornet to raid Tokyo and other targets on Honshu on that date in 1942.

Pendleton Field was the military base on Pendleton's

Pendleton art students visit Feves gallery

By TAMMY MALGESINI
East Oregonian

PENDLETON — Art classes from Pendleton High School recently visited the Betty Feves Memorial Gallery at Blue Mountain Community College's Pendleton campus.

A total of 116 students viewed the gallery show featuring the work of Sara Everett, said Nika Blasser, gallery director. The "Mending Measures" exhibition deals with endangered animals and their habitats, including a piece about bees highlighting the importance of pollinators, she said.

The Arts and Cultures Committee Series sponsored a DIY maker kit for a hand-sewn Rusty Patched Bumblebee pin/keychain that Everett made as a grab-and-go piece. With the artist's approval, Blasser was able to simplify the design into a much shorter project and prepped about 150 sets of bee parts with assistance from PHS art teacher Abbey Prevot.

Students, Blasser said, headed into the BMCC art classroom following each gallery tour to make their own Rusty Patched Bumblebee keychains, pins or plant stakes. Some of the projects morphed into other bugs, she said.

"It was a lively and inspiring day on campus," Blasser said. "The whole day was incredibly fun, and the students were enthusiastic about their time on campus."

She expressed appreciation to Prevot for having great classes at PHS, Alice Thomas for her assistance throughout the day, CommuniCare Oregon for a grant for art supplies, the Arts & Cultures Committee at BMCC for supporting Sara Everett's DIY workshop kits, and the Education Foundation of Pendleton for the field trip busses.

A nonprofit exhibit space, the Betty Feves Memorial Gallery's mission is to connect emerging and established artists and their work with BMCC students and staff, as well as the general public. Regular hours are Monday through Thursday, 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Everett's exhibit closes Thursday, April 28. The next gallery exhibition is the annual BMCC Student Art Show, which opens May 12. The opening reception is tentatively scheduled from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.
