

DEAR ABBY

High school friend oversteps bounds digging into the past

Dear Abby: Even though I have lived in a different state for many years, I've remained in touch with a female friend I'll call "Tina" from high school, mostly via text messaging. For the last 12 years, I have been in a relationship with a man who has been very good to me. We are not married and we don't live together.

When I first met him, he told me that many years ago, when he was very young, he had been involved in several barroom brawls and had been arrested more than once. He recognized that his abuse of alcohol was at the root of his problem and decided to quit drinking. Over the years he has worked hard to turn his life around, and he hasn't been in any sort of trouble since.

I believe everyone deserves a second chance. However, I told him that if he decided to resume drinking and/or got arrested for any reason, I would have nothing further to do with him. He hasn't. I didn't share that information with Tina because it really isn't any of her business.

Unbeknownst to me, Tina decided to conduct a background search on my boyfriend. One day, out of the blue, she sent me his "mugshot" and other details from 40 years ago, asking me if that was him. I can't believe she did that, and I feel like it was crossing the line. I can't comprehend what she hoped to accomplish. How would you advise me to handle this situation? — Simply Stunned In Florida

Dear Stunned: I would advise you to lose your "friend" and keep the man with whom you have the relationship.

JEANNE PHILLIPS
ADVICE

Tina was a furlong out of bounds to send you the information without first discussing it with you. She may have done it in an attempt to "warn" you, or perhaps because she's jealous. Whatever the reason, she owes you an apology — if you are still speaking to her, that is.

Dear Abby: My best friend often asks me to do errands for her, such as stop someplace and pick something up for her. It is usually close to where I live or work or on my way home. I don't always like doing it. In fact, I resent it.

An occasional favor is fine, but this happens way too often. How do I tell her "no" when it is somewhere

I have to drive right by? Once I told her I didn't think I'd have time (the truth at that moment), and she said I could do it later, when I had the time! She walks with a cane, but this started before she had mobility issues. How can I say no? — Imposed Upon In Texas

Dear Imposed Upon: Because you now resent your "best friend's" requests to run her errands, you will have to be honest with her. Explain that you didn't mind doing it once in a while in the beginning, but this is happening so often it is getting to you. Then "suggest" that many markets and cleaners deliver or that she use a delivery service.

DAYS GONE BY

100 years ago in the East Oregonian

At a meeting of the city council Wednesday evening, it was decided to rigidly enforce the laws relating to speeding, turning in the middle of a block, etc. Pool halls will be allowed open until 12 o'clock on Saturday nights, but must close at 11 p.m. other nights. Eraden Gerking, one of the best cowboys in the West, will make riders at the Pendleton Round-Up ride hard to take away honors from him when he comes to compete in the fall, according to Albert Peterson, president of the Camas Cowboy's Association. He is expected to win the all-around award as he did at an Idaho rodeo last month.

50 years ago in the East Oregonian

A facility that will annually convert 10,000 acres of raw potatoes into tasty French fries requires a lot of building, money and construction know-how. To handle the construction and equipment installation job in eight months also says a lot for the capability of the construction contractor and its key personnel. That's the job of Hoffman Construction Co., Portland, is doing on a Hermiston contract. Ground was broken in April on the huge $10 million Lamb-Weston plant in the southwest of Hermiston, and around the Fourth of July, Harvey Pruitt, general superintendent on the project for Hoffman, was predicting the plant will be completed "in the winter."

25 years ago in the East Oregonian

Ten teams will join the host team, Pendleton Swim Association, at their yearly invitational meet at the Pendleton High School pool. The meet kicks off at 5 p.m. Friday. Joining PSA in the meet is the Hermiston Swim Club, Hi-Desert Swim Club from Bend, Hood River Valley Swim Club, Milton-Free-water Valley, Mount Hood Swim Team, Oregon City Swim Team, Parkrose Swim Team, and The Dalles Swim Team. Between 350 and 425 swimmers are expected for the meet. PSA is coming off a strong performance at last weekend's Ted Walker Invitational in The Dalles where PSA's Jen Thomas earned a state-qualifying time in the 11-12-year-old 400 freestyle and swam on two relay teams that also earned state-qualifying times. Hood River easily won last week's team title and will be a strong favorite again this week. Other top teams should be The Dalles and La Grande.
