Wilford ‘Bud’ Elmer Prosser
December 10, 1927 - August 16, 2022

On the evening of Tuesday, Aug. 16, 2022, Bud’s caregiver came to prepare him for his evening’s sleep after 7 p.m. He appeared both awake and alert when he turned to her and resolutely said, pointing to the corner of his room, “I’ve been talking to my wife, and I decided to go with her.” As his wife, Delia, had passed away 14 years earlier, the caregiver accepted his claim and continued her rounds of checking the other residents in her care. Upon returning to Bud’s room about 8:20 p.m., she found he had moved on. Delia had indeed come to take him home with her.

Wilford Elmer Prosser, better known all his life as Bud, entered the world 94 years ago on Dec. 10, 1927, in Parma, Idaho, joining his two older sisters, Flora and Laura, along with his parents, Elmer and Edythe Prosser, on their family farm next to the state line of Idaho in the Big Bend community of Oregon.

His life involved working on the farm, milking cows by hand, raising chickens and pigs, tending vegetable gardens and fruit trees, and participating in the myriad of never-ending farm duties of the wooden, non-electric farmhouse. He also enjoyed hunting with his faithful dog and fishing as well as exploring the local mountains with friends.

Bud grew up during the Great Depression, attended a two-room wooden schoolhouse during his early education, played the saxophone and participated in various sports in high school, and experienced the repercussions of the bombing of Pearl Harbor, including local detention and prisoners-of-war camps and hot air balloon bombs.

He enlisted for World War II when he was 18, only to be rejected due to a physical defect in his ear. As an adult, he explored the avenues open to him, eventually settling in Pilot Rock, Oregon, and working at the wood mill that was the mainstay for many in the town. In 1946, he met his eventual life partner, Delia Gambill, and married her two years later.

Bud learned many trades during his over 30 years at the mill and worked his way up to management, also becoming part of a modest group assisting with the ambulance duties of the mill and the town.

Sons, Terry Lee and Steven Lynn Prosser, came in 1949 and 1953 and his love of life, family, and faith flourished strong in their small community with him becoming a deacon at the Pilot Rock Baptist Church.

Besides his regular employment, Bud was a skilled craftsman working with wood inlays, ornamental masonry, leathercrafts as well as intricate embroidery, which his wife introduced him to. He was also an avid, lifelong reader, especially stories of the Old West.

After seven years of caring for her at home, Bud lost his Delia to Alzheimer’s disease in 2008 and months later, his youngest son, Steven, also died. Son, Terry brought his father into his household in northern California and then in 2014, they were joined by Terry’s second wife, Violet.

Life was good for a while until Terry unexpectedly passed away in 2016. Life changed again for Bud when he relocated to Texas the next year with his daughter-in-law, Violet. As Bud was a gentle and very grateful man, he easily developed new friends and enjoyed his life, family, and travels until recent physical changes necessitated his entering the Brookdale Senior Living home where he was lovingly cared for by the staff and the friends he made.

Bud is survived by his daughter-in-law, Violet; her children, Frank (Alma), Christopher and Timothy (Denise) Evans; and their collective children, Sebastian, Vivian, Cameron and Camila Evans; good friends, George and Odette Richardson; his grandchildren, Sarah (Gabriel) Valdez, Deborah DeRenzi with her children, Ashlyn, Julianna, Sadie and Dylan Rowlands; and Jeffrey (Crystal) Prosser with their child, Tyson Terry Prosser; as well as his much-loved niece, Amber Gambill (James) Jennings.

The family wishes to thank the dedicated care given to Bud during his short stay at the Brookdale Senior Living home in Georgetown, Texas. A service will be held at 11 a.m. at the Burns Mortuary of Pendleton, 336 S.W. Dorion Ave., Pendleton, Oregon, on Friday, Sept. 2, 2022. He will be laid to rest in the Pilot Rock Cemetery in Pilot Rock, Oregon, next to his beloved wife, Delia.
