THE HUMBOLDT THEORY OF CAVALIER AND PURITAN.—The New Orleans Picayune recently exposed in a most merciless manner the humbug theory that the North was of Puritan and the South of Cavalier descent. So far is it from being correct, that the position of the most eminent military leaders as to the rebellion, shows the contrary to be nearer the truth. The names of Farragut, Thomas, Emory, Winslow, Meade and Dupont, are among the brightest in the Union ranks, and they were all Southern born men. Grant, Logan, McClelland, Francis P. Blair, Schofield, are of Southern connections or birth, and the Union armies are full of proofs that some of the staunchest defenders of the country are from that section. In political matters, the southern born man has much the advantage of a New England man, on personal grounds, all over the West, except, perhaps, Michigan and Iowa. On the other hand, the North furnished the Southern armies with their Inspector General, Cooper, and Gen's Pemberton, Lowell, Jubal Early, Ruggles, Clark and a host of their ablest officers. In their ranks were the descendants of the reigicides, Bradshaw, Peters and Harrison, and none were such violent, uncompromising rebels as those of Northern birth. Viewing the subject in a more agreeable phase, the South has ever been the theatre for the display of Northern abilities in the political field. The names of S. S. Prentiss, a native of Maine; J. A. Quitman, of New York; and John M. Berrien, of Pennsylvania, are idolized to this day by the Southern people. These names are only a few of many of those Northern men who have been distinguished in Southern annals. It is important to cite these examples to show that the hateful spirit of sectionalism is not ground into the people of the South. There have been manifestations of this spirit, but it belongs to those who either come from the South Carolina school of politicians or the lowest dregs of the southern population. There is nothing to prove that the ex rebels and the Unionists may not be better friends in the future than ever in the past.

CHICKAHOMINY LODGE.—The Chickahominy Lodge, which is located in the hills between Moore's and Elk creeks, some miles above Idaho City, has recently had much work done upon it. The Gobden Mining Company has run a tunnel two hundred and forty feet, striking the lode at a considerable depth, and finding very rich ore in large quantities. The company has just completed a new twenty-five stamp mill, and will soon commence work. The success of the mine is largely attributable to the zeal and efficiency of the superintendent, Mr. Richardson.

FLINT DISTRICT, OWYHEE.—Within eight or ten miles of the mines of Owyhee, is Flint District, which contains many veins of rich quartz. On account of its vicinity to the wonderfully rich mines of Gold and War Eagle mountains, its merits have been obscured, until recently some heavy investments have been made in it. The district is easily accessible; has wood and water in abundance, and all desirable facilities for mining operations. Among the favorite lodes are the Rising Star, Polar Star, Boyd & Keller, Gem and Black Warrior.
