

EDITOR MOUNTAINEER.—From time immemorial there has been an old Indian trail between the Cascades and Dalles, on the south side of the river, which, since civilization has reached this coast, has been used by white men. Some seven years ago, the County Commissioners made it a county road, on paper, in the Clerk's office; but the road is only a trail yet. More recently a company claiming incorporation under the general law, call it their wagon road, yet it remains a trail, and is loudly complained of as being bad, so bad as occasionally to cause the loss of stock. Poor immigrants and broken miners, who are without money, or cannot well afford to pay the steamboat fare, and travel this old trail of necessity, find their way impeded by gates, and toll demanded, which from already depleted purses, they are ill-prepared to pay.

If there is no legal authority to call an Indian trail a "wagon road," and collect toll upon it, how long shall the outraged public submit to such imposition? If this forced imposition is by legislative authority, let the Legislative Assembly about to meet in extra session, examine the humanity and justice of such authority. These toll-gates, doubtless, have the effect of turning travel more or less from the trail on to the steamers. Whether the toll-gates belong to a monied corporation who are said to have lost a few thousand dollars in unprofitable and rocky diggings along the base of the mountains, or whether they are the private property of the gate keepers, are questions of very little interest to poor men, who perhaps, pay their last dollar for the privilege of traveling on a bad trail, and the subscriber does not stop to investigate this matter.

IZZARD.

IDAHO AND NORTHERN CALIFORNIA. We judge from the tone of the Idaho press, that in the spring an energetic attempt will be made to supply the Southern Idaho markets with produce from Northern California. We doubt very much whether this class of articles can be carried to beyond Owyhee from California without absolute loss, but to that point the Columbia River trade is sure to meet a lively competition, and nothing but the adoption of energetic measures will prevent the trade from being divided, or perhaps wrested from the northern route. The cheapness of teams and the leading articles of domestic produce in California are the principal means relied on by our opponents to reverse the present order of things, and it is calculated that manufactured articles, by reason of their relatively smaller freights as compared to value, will follow in the wake of this movement.

THE UPPER COLUMBIA.—We are in receipt of a letter from Colville of the 14th inst., which contains highly encouraging reports from the mines on the Upper Columbia. Four Frenchmen had arrived from the mines with $6000, which they dug out in two weeks. Returning miners generally had plenty of gold. In expectation of an advance in the price of provisions, wheat was selling at $4 a-bushel, and all kinds of produce in proportion. The weather is moderate, and has been very fine during the Fall months. Capt.

White's steamer was to be launched in a week from the date of the letter, and it was intended to make a trip of exploration up the river at the earliest possible moment, and it will be done if the river stays open until the middle of December.
